

RACE QUESTION

Injected Into Discussion Over Election of U. S. Senators

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The injection yesterday by Senator Root and Senator Bacon of Georgia of the race question into the hitherto comparatively commonplace discussion in the senate of the resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote, lifted that controversy to an almost sensational plane.

In a long speech by Senator Root in opposition to the Borah resolution he said that the national government could not afford to barter away the privilege of supervising senatorial elections in the south if it should arise for such supervision.

Also in speaking of the observance of the 14th and 15th amendments to the constitution he said that from time to time "things happen" in the southern states which should not be permitted by the states and which should be corrected, if not by the states themselves then by the national government. Later he took occasion to emphasize this statement.

When first made the declaration caused a visible stir on the senatorial side of the chamber, and feeling was intensified by the repetition. It at once became manifest that if anything was lacking to insure opposition by the southern senators to the resolution it had been supplied by Mr. Root.

Senator Bacon, who had "charge" of the measure, said that the race question had been dragged into the case for the purpose of alienating the minority.

When Mr. Root finished his speech he left the chamber. Mr. Bacon immediately expressed a desire for specifications regarding the things which the New York senator had said "happen in the south," which ought to call for federal intervention, but the demand did not reach Mr. Root until after Senator Beveridge had made a formal reply to the New York senator's speech and the senate was prepared to adjourn. Just before 6 o'clock Mr. Bacon revived the southern question. Repeating the remarks of the New Yorker, Mr. Bacon addressed himself directly to Mr. Root, and asked:

"What are the things to which the senator refers?"

Mr. Root's response was in no wise evasive or indirect. Recalling the substance of his previous remarks, he said that he referred to the violent overthrow by the government of the power to enforce the protection of the suffrage privileges of the southern negroes. Facing Senator Bacon and speaking with great deliberation, Mr. Root enumerated peonage, lynchings and disfranchisement, such as "the grandfather clause" in the constitutions of many of the southern states, as things calculated to deprive the black man of that equal protection with the white man which the constitution guarantees.

"The people of the United States are willing to fold their hands and wish the southern people God-speed in working out their delicate problem as long as they do so in kindness, but if there should be such oppression as call for the exercise of the power of the United States to enforce the amendments that power will be exercised, and it ought to be," he said.

Mr. Bacon said that such questions as lynchings and peonage were in no wise cognate to the subject under consideration. He accounted for lynchings on the ground of severe provocation, which he said deprived men of their reason and made demons of them. He found one cause for them in the sparsity of population and to show that this crime is confined to no one part of the country, he said there was a lynching in New York in which the victim was burned to death. As for the charge of peonage, he said there was no practice in the south worthy of that name.

Indicating doubt as to Mr. Root having had such offenses in mind, Mr. Bacon said he was sure the New York senator was really inveigling against supposed offences against the franchise.

"Am I correct?" questioned Mr. Bacon.

"Perfectly," responded Mr. Root. Then he added: "If the constitution should be so amended as to provide for the election of senators by direct vote the national government must retain the power to make these elections free and unhampered. Without this privilege the government of the United States surrenders the power of its own preservation."

"Does the senator contend for the power of congress to amend laws now on the statute books, such as the 'grandfather clause'?" asked Mr. Bacon.

"Without the slightest doubt," said the New Yorker.

"Well," returned the Georgian, "the senator has certainly put us on notice."

"I meant to put you and also the country on notice," replied Mr. Root, speaking with force.

Replying at some length, Mr. Bacon said that to change the manner of electing senators without giving the states control was a grave risk. Speaking of the past experience of the south, he said:

"If the southern people had not contended heroically against conditions which confronted them civilization would have been destroyed in the south and it would have been but a short time before it would have been destroyed in the entire nation."

After a few remarks by Senator Fletcher of Florida regarding the so-called peonage system of the south, the incident closed for the day, with Senator Bacon's declaration that everything had been perfectly explained by the question of lynchings and peonage had been brought into the controversy.

Three Other Children So Badly Frozen That it Was Necessary to Amputate Their Hands—Little Ones Were Left at Home Alone and the House Caught Fire

HOULTON, Me., Feb. 11.—Two children are dead and three were so badly frozen that it was necessary to amputate all their hands, as a result of a fire at East Littleton which turned the five little ones out into the snow while their parents were absent from home on business. The three survivors are in a serious condition but it was hoped their lives have been saved by the amputations.

They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lyons. The oldest is 7 years old, two were twins aged 4 years, and the other two were twins, 2 years old.

Mr. Lyons was working in the woods and Mrs. Lyons was obliged to go to a neighbor's house for some supplies, leaving the children alone in the house. In the interval the house caught fire and the older child succeeded in getting the younger children out of the burning house. The little ones sat in the snow, cuddled up, trying to keep warm until help arrived. The older twins crawled through the snow to a neighbor's house while the eldest child went to give the alarm, but not finding any one at home, they went into a shed and crawling into a pump tried to get under cover. When neighbors finally arrived on the scene the children were badly frozen. The house was totally destroyed.

THE UNIONISTS

UNABLE TO AGREE ON A LINE OF ACTION

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Apparently the unionist leaders in parliament have been unable to agree on lines of action in opposition to the government's policy. On the eve of the meeting of parliament, it was hinted that Lord Lansdowne, the leader of the opposition in the house of lords, was ready to introduce a bill for the reform of the upper house, but yesterday the Times said that the unionist leaders had decided it would be undesirable to introduce such a bill. Both these statements lack confirmation in responsible unionist quarters.

Lord Curzon of Kedleston in a speech here last night deprecated the presentation of a stilted provoking veto bill at a moment when preparations for the coronation were being made, and urged the importance of both parties seeking to arrive at a permanent settlement of the problem—not a solution of it that the opposite party would endeavor to repeal. He openly referred to the immaturity of the reform of the house of lords and suggested lines on which such action should be carried out.

PANAMA CANAL

The Fortification of It Discussed

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—To fortify or not to fortify was the bone of an after-dinner discussion of the Panama canal at the Economic club's banquet at the Hotel Astor last night. "Fortify," said the veteran fighter, Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired; "don't," cautioned an eminent authority on law, Prof. Henry Wade Rogers, dean of the Yale law school.

The disagreement between the speakers was a friendly one and was shared by others who addressed the meeting—Dr. Louis Livingston Seaman, Henry Reuterbach, the marine artist and naval authority; Congressman J. Warren Keifer of Ohio; Henry Clews, and George Henry Putnam.

Count Apponyi, the Hungarian statesman who has come to America to discuss peace problems, dropped in for a moment. He would not commit himself as to the canal, but said his visit to America was not made with a feeling that it was necessary to urge a movement for universal peace, for America was already looked up to by the nations of Europe as the leader in the movement.

"Every military man must know," said Gen. Miles, "that in the case of war, the isthmian canal would be, if possible, the first place to be seized by a foreign foe and any student of history must know that territories are regarded in almost every war. Even now in times of peace, our people advocated disregarding the treaty we have made with one foreign government and making a treaty with all nations to neutralize the canal which one and all could violate when it was to their interest to do so. Already we see indications in some quarters of a disposition to form a league to prevent our protecting or holding the canal."

Mr. Reuterbach said: "We ought to close up the useless navy yards that are being used for the convenience of the constituents of the congressmen of the state where they are maintained, and construct an adequate base of supplies for the Panama canal. The next war will be in the Caribbean sea and we are inviting a disaster by not fortifying the canal. It cost $600,000,000 to build and $100 worth of nitroglycerine, properly placed in time of war, would disable the canal for any practical purposes."

LORIMER'S FATE

DEPENDS LARGELY ON POSITION OF SENATOR CULLOM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Whether the senate permits Senator Lorimer of Illinois to retain his seat, depends largely upon the attitude of his colleague, Senator Cullom, when the case comes up for a vote. This was made clear yesterday when two senators who had not determined their own course in the case, endeavored to learn how the senior Illinois senator intended to vote. If those senators succeeded in learning Senator Cullom's views they were the first to get any expression from him.

Notwithstanding Mr. Cullom's silence a report was current on the floor of the senate yesterday that he intended to vote that the election of Mr. Lorimer was corrupt. Mr. Cullom said that he did not authorize such a statement but he would not dignify it with a denial.

THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION CHURCH

Immaculate Conception Church Undergoing Extensive Repairs

The Immaculate Conception church in East Merrimack street, conducted by the Oblate Fathers, is undergoing extensive repairs.

HENRY L. ROURKE, Architect.

The work was begun in June and proved to be a very hard and dangerous task as supports had to be put in from the basement to the roof of the church. The old wooden columns were replaced by steel columns. The plaster work to the base of the main roof had to be stripped off, and in so doing it was further discovered that the trusses supporting the roof of the church, had rotted through, and had to be taken out and replaced by new ones. The lower roof of the church story was in such a bad condition that the slates had to be taken off, and the new roof was put on. The ribs on the old columns are to be used on the new steel columns in place of using Keene's cement which would cost considerably more.

The new plaster arches, capitals and cornices and decorations and plaster work will be put back to correspond with the old plaster work. A new feature of the church will be the electrical decorations, which will be carried out in a thorough manner, so as to illuminate all sections of the plaster work.

The interior decorations will all be new and carried out about on the same style as the old. Active work in the church was started in June of last year and hurriedly pushed through. Architect Rourke stated that the trusses were in such a decayed condition that they could not have stood through the winter with a load of snow on the roof. Sloggers now crowd the upper part of the church and will be ready by Saturday for the plasterers to start in on their work. A good portion of the work is completed. The trusses and columns have been put in, but it will be at least six months before the entire job is completed and the approximate cost of the repairs will be between $20,000 and $25,000. Services are now being held in the lower church.

The contractors in charge of the work are the following: Architect, Henry L. Rourke; general contractor, John J. O'Connor; plasterer, Matthias T. Connors; decorators, Dryer & Co.; electrical contractors, Tucke & Parker; metal contractors, H. H. Wilder & Co.; scaffolding contractor, Thomas J. Johnson; and the structural steel work is being done by men from the Chelmsford Foundry company.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Just 44 years ago a small boy of 12 joined a certain minstrel troupe. Within the next 10 years that boy had danced himself into the affections of the American public to a remarkable degree, until he was known from coast to coast as one of the greatest minstrels—the old time minstrels—that America has produced.

That boy was George Primrose, for 30 years in company with that other famous minstrel, West, at the head of

with his two "boys," Murphy and West, at 1.745 and 1.50 p. m. respectively. He has been engaged at the largest salary ever paid in America to a performer appearing at such low popular prices, and will present some of the style of dancing for which he is so celebrated, and which he alone, with the exception of the two pupils of his who appear with him, can do. It is the most distinctive and remarkable variety of soft shoe dancing known and it has never been equaled by any of the famous minstrels' followers.

Indeed, the entire bill at the Merrimack Square theatre next week will be of the "blue ribbon" variety. Among the other feature acts are the Musical Buxkirk and his company; Bretto Brothers, musical dancers; the Sisters Russell and William B. Russell in a European novelty, and Frederick Meek, the soloist.

An innovation will be real "daylight" pictures, 1000 feet of the newest moving picture films, exhibited with the house lights all on. This is the latest development in the science of motion photography and is accomplished by the use of direct current.

Leader Philip Lederman of the theatre orchestra, has composed a stirring march tune dedicated to the patrons of the theatre and entitled "The Blue Ribbon March," which will be a feature of the musical programs during the week. On Monday night the the Primrose and West Minstrels. Today he is a rich man in his own right, but the old call of the "boots" still appeals to him. He goes back to the stage again and again, and will always while he lives, he says. George Primrose comes to Lowell next week for the first time in several years, to the Merrimack Square theatre, where he will appear daily

"The Blood is The Life"

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It catches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by enclosing fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R.V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

MABEL ESTELLE, Who Will Join the Hathaway Stock Company This Week.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Stage directors say that no comedy drama equals "Our New Minister," a play of New England life, by Denman Thompson, as to popularity with members of stock companies. That is because it contains so many characters that they like to enact. The leading lady has a scene, to quote that eminent critic William Winter, "Unexampled for tragic intensity in any contemporary melodrama."

The leading man is heroic, with valor that appeals to common sense as well as to romantic imagination. The bad man of the piece is no brute, but a famous intellectual study. In cowardice whom the best character actors are fond of portraying.

The ex-convict Ransom, bent on vengeance and his gentle daughter, Nance Ransom, are regarded as the best idealization of such natures ever put on the stage.

Then there are the squire and the postmaster, admirable examples of New England farm life. And for relieving comedy, there are two pairs of extra young folks, to say nothing of a New York bawdy boy.

Darius Sturtis, town constable, is a pleasing feature and one of the most realistic suggestions of rural life, in fact the feature of the many excellent characters in this pleasing comedy. Denman Thompson, the author, is more familiar to the Lowell theatre-going public as the writer of "The Old Homestead" which play has proven one of the greatest successes before the public for the last twenty years.

"Our New Minister" has been called the most truthfully romantic of all American rural dramas, nothing in it is exaggerated or distorted for the sake of theatrical effect; and for that very reason its power to amuse audiences, as it is full of refined, wholesome fun, is beyond that of any other modern play.

Consequently the characters are so clearly defined and so effective, that naturally the actors enjoy them as well as the audiences do. That's why there are bound to be good performances of "Our New Minister" as presented by The Donald Meek stock company with Severin DeBeyn, at this popular little playhouse next week. Daily matinees.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today an exceptional program is offered yesterday at Theatre Voyons and best of all it is an all exclusive show shown in daylight theatre. The biograph subject "Heart Beats of Long Ago" tells a story full of interest and acted in the exclusive biograph way. The western picture "A Cowboy's Devotion" tells a thrilling and most dramatic story and the comedy is very good. On Monday the feature will be "The Doctor" based on the well known book of the same name and a picture that cannot fail to reach the hearts of all who see it. It tells a connected and charming story of a physician's life that is natural and at the same time one that is appealing. A pleasing comedy appropriate to Valentine's day is also a feature.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

If you want to enjoy a good laugh attend the show at the Academy today. The Ten Louisiana Bluesmen have a lively skit of plantation life in songs and dances. Flauto is a clever acrobatic pantomime and Leone and Dale entertain in a musical sketch called "A Lesson in Opera." There will be a sacred concert on Sunday and on Monday an entire change of program. Commencing Monday the vaudeville features will include, Mahoney Brothers and Daisy, comedians and dancers; George Beane and Company, in "A Woman's Way," Mlle. Martha and Oily, the graceful European gymnasts.

year ago, Rev. Fr. Nolan, O. M. I., then pastor of the parish, noticed the roof caving in. He immediately consulted Architect Henry L. Rourke, who made a thorough examination of the building, and discovered that the 16 white pine columns measuring 12x12 and 23 feet in length, were in dry rot and would have to be replaced by steel columns.

GOVERNOR DIX

WILL NOT INTERFERE IN THE SENATORIAL FIGHT

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11.—With Gov. Dix, Charles F. Murphy, William F. Sheehan and other democratic leaders in New York, the handful of legislators who remained here last night expressed the hope that some end out of the senatorial dilemma might be reached there so as to put an end to the deadlock next week. Gov. Dix is expected to talk over the situation with Mayor Gaynor before his return, but there are no present indications that the governor intends to interfere in any way.

The deadlock apparently is as firm as ever. There was no quorum at yesterday's session.

THE OPERA HOUSE

The initial performances of the new stock company to be seen here at the Opera House will be given today, afternoon and evening, presenting as the first play of its engagement, "The Charity Ball," by David Belasco. The final rehearsals of this play have been given, the carpenters and scenic artists are busy putting the finishing touches to the stage settings, which are to be entirely new for each act, and everything is in readiness for the opening. The company has been selected with care and is composed of people particularly adapted to the presentation of a high grade of dramatic work and includes: Mary Sanders, formerly of the Castle Square theatre, Boston; Francis Whitcomb, Geraldine Russell, Annette Colburn, Doris Fox, Forrest Stanley, J. A. McQuarrie, G. J. Haines, Frank Christie, Albert Hanna, F. M. Wright, Russell Clarke, and others. The plays are produced under the direction of Mr. J. H. Huxley, a stage director of wide experience. "The Charity Ball" will be given for two performances today and every afternoon and evening next week, with the exception of Friday, when "The Girl from Rector's" will appear for one performance only. The subscription sale for the stock company is now open and patrons wishing to reserve the same seats for each week may do so.

"THE GIRL FROM RECTOR'S." Paul M. Potter, who rose to international fame through his authorship of "Tribby," was paid more royalties on "The Girl from Rector's" last season than was received by any other playwright in New York for a single work. This piece opened at Weber's Music Hall early in January and continued an uninterrupted run of one hundred nights, brought to close only then because contracts for road appearances had been made previously.

The receipts at the famous Music Hall grew from the opening evening and night after night the records established by Weber and Fields at the night of their success, were repeatedly shattered.

"The Girl from Rector's" will be seen at the Opera House Feb. 17.

CORNELL MEN

DEFEATED COLUMBIA IN HOCKEY GAME

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Cornell drove another spike into the intercollegiate hockey championship by defeating Columbia 4 to 0 at the St. Nicholas rink last night. The Ithacans have but one game left on the schedule—Dartmouth at Boston, a week from tonight, and this, if won, will clinch the title for Cornell. If the Ithacans lost today and Harvard defeated Yale in the final game of the series on the 15th, the Crimson will tie with Cornell.

APRIL 19th OBSERVANCE

General Committee Discussed Plans for Big Celebration

The committee on the observance of the 50th anniversary of the march through Baltimore of the Sixth Massachusetts regiment, to be held on April 19th, met at the office of Mayor Meehan in city hall yesterday afternoon, and discussed many plans without taking definite action. There was quite a discussion over the amount of money to be appropriated by the city in view of the fact that financial assistance is expected from the state.

Mayor Meehan called to order, and all the members were present except Major Charles A. Stott.

E. B. Pierce submitted a list of men prominent in military and civil walks of life who should be invited to attend the exercises here. This list is not complete, and it was ordered to place it on file, so that from time to time additions may be made. The list as advanced last night was as follows:

President of the United States William H. Taft, Washington, D. C. (special letter); Vice President of the United States James S. Sherman, Washington, D. C. (special letter); Hon. Jacob M. Dickinson, secretary of war, Washington, D. C.; Major General Leonard Wood, U. S. A., Washington, D. C.; Major General William C. Cragg, U. S. A., Washington, D. C.; Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, U. S. A., Washington, D. C.; Major General Fred D. Grant, U. S. A., Governor's Island, N. Y.; Brig. Gen. Henry L. Abbott, U. S. A., Cambridge, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Thos. P. Barr, U. S. A., Boston, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Samuel Beech, U. S. A., Brookline, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Asa B. Carey, U. S. A., Vineyard Harbor, Mass.; Brig. Gen. H. B. Carrington, U. S. A., Hyde Park, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Henry C. Cook, U. S. A., Fall River, Mass.; Brig. Gen. John McE. Hyde, U. S. A., Brookline, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Henry M. Loxelle, U. S. A., Winchester, Mass.; Brig. Gen. S. M. Wainwright, U. S. A., Boston, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Philip H. Read, U. S. A., Lowell, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Clinton B. Sears, U. S. A., Newton Centre, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Charles E. Suter, U. S. A., Brookline, Mass.; Brig. Gen. H. C. Ward, U. S. A., Amherst, Mass.; Maj. Gen. Adelbert Ames, U. S. A., Lowell, Mass.; Hon. Simeon E. Baldwin, governor, Hartford, Conn.; Hon. Frederick W. Plafsted, governor, Augusta, Me.; Hon. Robert P. Bass, governor, Concord, N. H.; Hon. Aram J. Pothier, governor, Providence, R. I.; Hon. John A. Mearns, governor, Vermont; Hon. John A. Dix, governor, Albany, N. Y.; Hon. John K. Tener, governor, Harrisburg, Pa.; Hon. Austin L. Crouthers, governor, Annapolis, Md. (special letter); Most Rev. W. H. O'Connell, Boston; Hon. Eugene N. Foss, governor, Boston, Mass.; Hon. Louis A. Frothingham, lieutenant governor, mayors of all Massachusetts cities; members of all Massachusetts societies; members of Old Sixth; selectmen of Acton and Stoneham; mayor of Baltimore, Md. (special); mayor of Worcester, Mass. (special); Loyal Legion commander, Massachusetts first lieutenant, C. H. Porter, 18 Central street, Boston, Mass.; G. A. R. commander in chief, John E. Gillman, Boston, Mass. (special); partner, commander, J. Willard Brann, Stoneham, Mass.; department assistant commander, L. H. DeVolve, Boston, Mass.; Brigadier General E. F. Jones, Binghamton, N. Y.; Lieut. Col. Melvin Beal, Lawrence, Mass.; Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, Hon. W. Murray Crane, Hon. Butler Ames and remaining Massachusetts congressmen.

Mr. Pierce explained that many of the military officers invited are on the retired list, although this did not obtain all through the list. In some instances special invitations will be sent, as indicated on the list.

Alderman Andrew Barrett, a special committee to look up the matter of engraved invitations, reported that the size wanted for the occasion would cost between $40 and $55 per 500. Major Charles S. Proctor called that 500 would suffice for the observance. Speaking of the state troops coming here for the day he said that enough money should be voted to feed them well.

Mayor Meehan said that in 1865, when the Ladd & Whitney monument was dedicated, the city spent the sum of $3325.

It was voted that the municipal committee meet Tuesday evening at seven o'clock at City Hall, to consider the matter of an appropriation.

Major Proctor believed that $5000 would be necessary for a proper celebration as the guests must be entertained, and several bands of music will be necessary.

Alderman Barrett said that it would be impossible to estimate the exact cost because until the guests arrived nobody would know just who were coming.

Councilman Rogers was opposed to appropriating $5000 and suggested that a smaller amount could be appropriated and later increased. The city, he said might be obliged to modify its plan. He believed in a general observance throughout the various cities and towns of the state.

Mayor Meehan said that he talked with Senator Denny of Worcester a few days ago, and that Mr. Denny had told him when he introduced the bill into the legislature he did not have in mind any special observance in Lowell. He believed in a general observance throughout the various cities and towns of the state.

Alderman Barrett said that personally he believed the city ought to go as far as it could in the appropriation of money. He said that all the committee wanted to get was some assurance that money would be forthcoming.

A banquet was spoken of and Major Proctor said that he had spoken with President Johnson of the school board, and had registered a claim for the use of the high school annex for the affair. He said that Mr. Johnson had said that there would be no more banquets there, but was reminded that the observance would be a municipal affair. He believed Mr. Johnson had taken cognizance of that suggestion and felt that perhaps the annex might be used for the banquet.

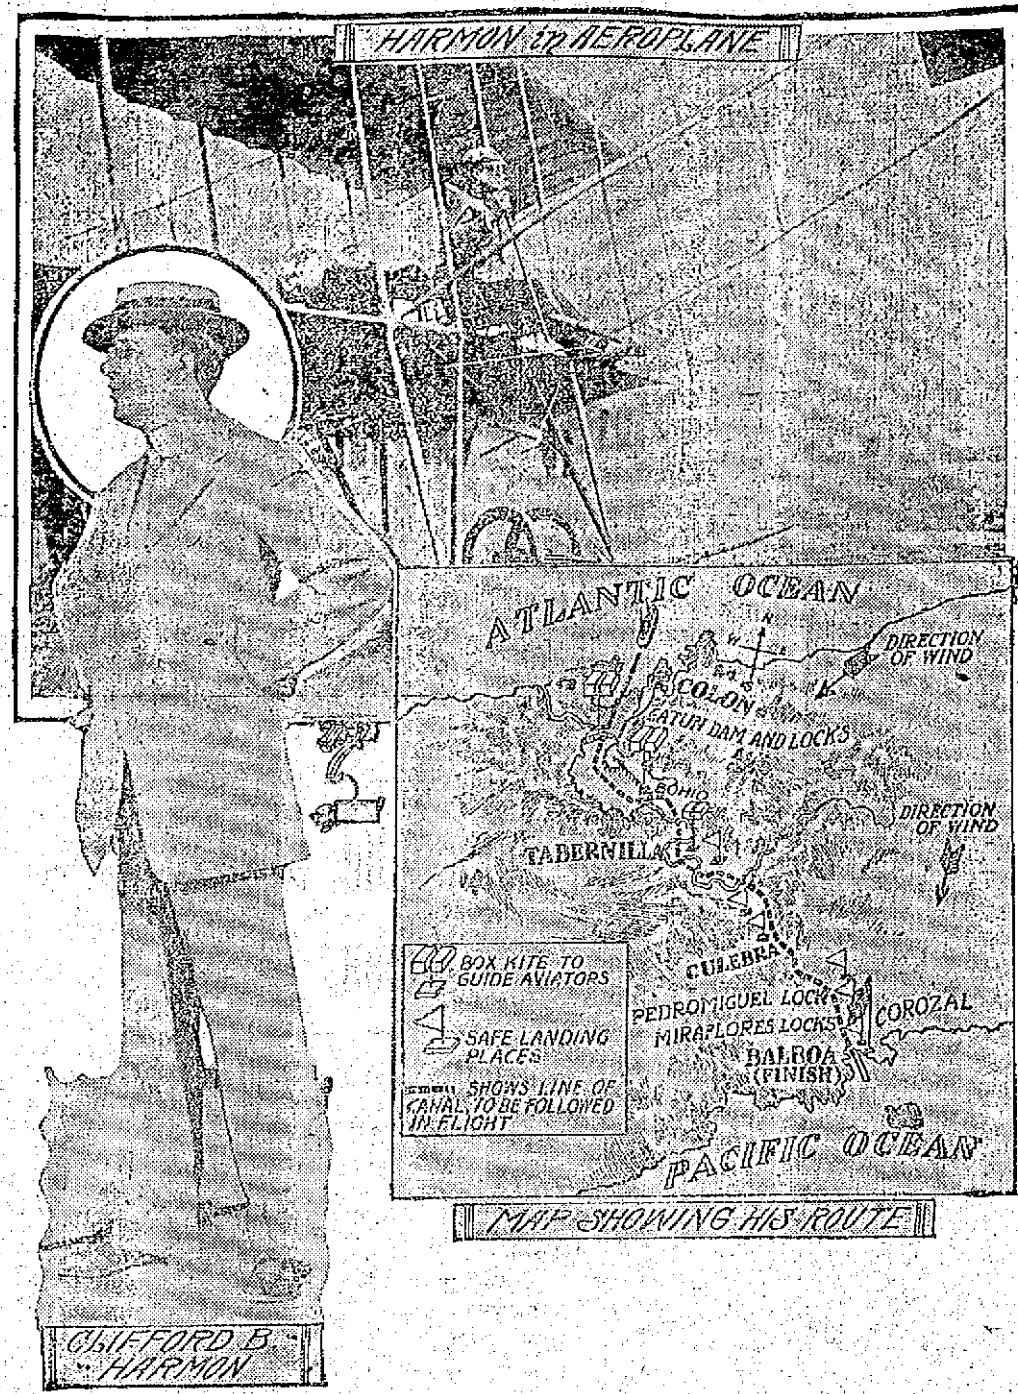

Alderman Barrett suggested that the Lowell board of trade be asked to help the affair along as much as possible.

It was voted to leave the matter of selecting the invitations with Mr. Barrett.

Adjourned at 5.15 o'clock.

CLIFFORD B. HARMON TO TRY FLIGHT ACROSS THE ISTHMUS OF PANAMA

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Clifford B. Harmon, the celebrated aviator, has completed his plans for attempting the hazardous venture of flying in an aeroplane from Colon across the Isthmus of Panama—from ocean to ocean. He starts from New York Feb. 25 on the steamship Moltke with all his apparatus and assistants. His report will have important influence in determining the attitude of congress toward fortifying the Panama canal, as his course takes him over the big ditch. Experts say aviators could destroy any fortifications erected at the canal by means of dropping bombs from the sky. The topography of the land over which Harmon will fly is such as to produce cross currents and eddies in the lower air strata, these currents paralleling the configuration of the land and being atmospheric disturbances for at least 150 feet above the earth. Therefore, in order to gain the more constant air the aviator should attain a height of from 450 to 550 feet as soon as practicable after the launching, an altitude greater than would be necessary under normal conditions in the United States. By the time the navigator is over Gatun, six miles from the starting point, he should be at least 350 feet up, and above the famous

Culebra cut, three-fourths of the distance between Colon and Panama, he will have attained his greatest height. Of course it is feasible and may be found desirable to go much higher, but the altitude mentioned will be sufficient for the aviator to discern the flag-graves box kites and flags which it is proposed to distribute along the route. Kites to indicate the route and flags to mark available spots for landing in case the motor goes wrong. A kite placed above Gatun dam will be readily discernible from the ship at the start. Kites also are to be flown above Bohio and Tabernilla.

NEW MACHINE For the Butler Vets Has Arrived

The Butler Vets new machine (which promises to beat the world), in parenthesis means confidentially, arrived in Lowell yesterday from the far west and was hauled to the apartments of the Butlers in Fletcher street. It is fair to behold and looks awfully good to Jim Walker and a few more experts who got a look at it upon its arrival. It is called the "Liberty" and is surmounted by a Goddess of Liberty. A special meeting of the Butlers has been called for next Sunday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting the new machine and to arrange plans for a formal christening. It will give the members a good opportunity to look the tub over and hear its dog points explained and a large meeting is expected.

POLITICS BOOM Dracut Caucuses Will be Held Next Week

Politics in Dracut are beginning to boom as the caucuses are near at hand. The democrats will caucus on Feb. 15th at the hose house at the Navy Yard, while the following evening the republicans will hold forth at the Grange hall in Dracut Centre.

Up to date there has been but one addition to the list of candidates already published in The Sun. Percy Smith of Dracut Centre is the new candidate and he is out for selection on the republican ticket, making the fourth candidate of the republicans for the three positions, the democrats having six candidates.

The report that School Committee member Bernard Maguire of Collinsville would be a candidate at the last moment is untrue for while Mr. Maguire's friends have been trying hard to prevail upon him to allow the use of his name he has steadfastly declined. Mr. Maguire's reason is: "There are too many friends of mine in the fight at present and I don't want to antagonize them. Had the matter been suggested to me before my friends got busy, I might have run, but under the circumstances I will not be a candidate. Among the candidates of the democrats now before the public there is plenty of material from which to select men who will give a creditable account of themselves if elected."

There is considerable interest in the Dracut election among Lowell people, because of the fact that two of the candidates are well known in Lowell.

John E. Burke, who is looked upon as one of the strongest democratic candidates and who has previously distinguished himself before his townsmen as a clever moderator, is a popular employee of George Fairburn's Merrimack Square market, and if he stands as well in Dracut as he does in the Square, there will be nothing to it.

The other man in whom Lowell is interested is "Pluggie" Pat Keegan of bicycle fame. Mr. Keegan is a full-fledged resident of Dracut, having purchased the Flaherty cottage in Mammoth road three years ago. Mr. Keegan has taken an active interest in town affairs since becoming a resident and will show some class as a candidate for office.

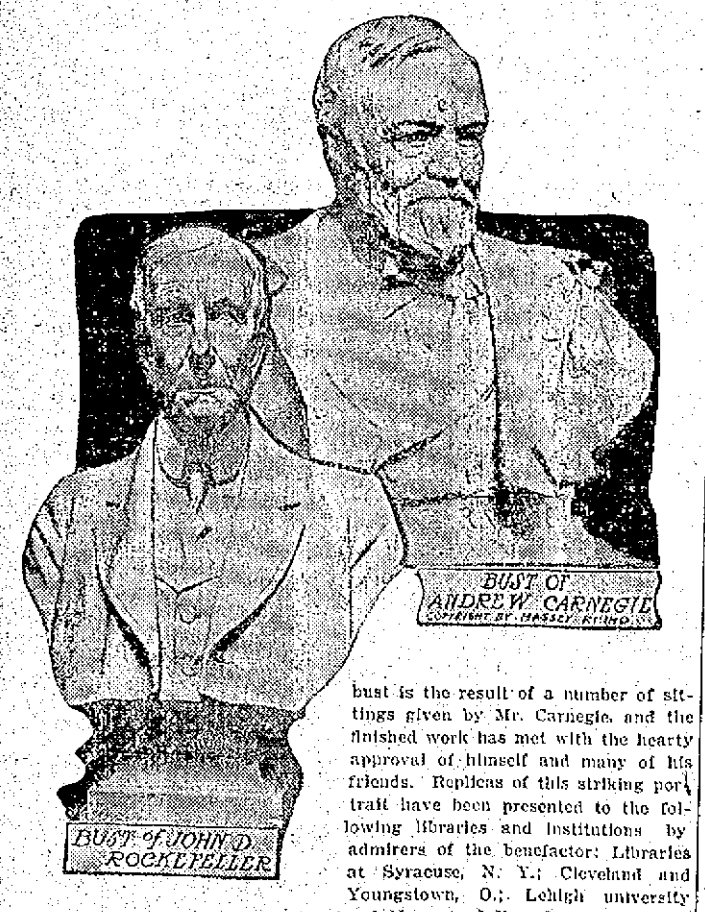

MARRIED 70 YEARS
TRURO, N. S., Feb. 11.—Various persons high in Canada's official life sent messages of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. William Dunlop of Middle Stewieckie yesterday on the 70th anniversary of the venerable couple's marriage. Earl and Countess Grey, who also noticed the anniversary last year and Premier Laurier were among those signing messages of congratulation yesterday. The old people are in excellent health.

OWEN MORAN WAITING FOR NEXT CHANCE WITH WOLGAST

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Since Knock-out Brown administered that fine hiding to Ad Wolgast in Philadelphia and came near putting over a sleep producer on the champion, Owen Moran has not slept a wink. The little Englishman fears that some one will come along and prevent him from getting the next crack at the title holder. Moran says that Wolgast would be very easy for him and hopes that some kind promoter will come along and sign them up at once. Owen is willing to let the champion name the terms to suit himself. Wolgast has promised Moran that he will give him the next chance at the title, and it is more than likely that the pair will be matched to meet the latter part of March.

NEW BRONZE BUSTS OF MEN WHO HAVE GIVEN AWAY FORTUNES

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The two men of modern times who have been most lavish in giving money for philanthropic purposes have had life-size bronze busts made of them recently by well-known sculptors. The reproduction of a bronze bust of Andrew Carnegie, representing him in his robes as lord rector of St. Andrew's university, Scotland, the first American who ever held that honored position, was modeled by J. Massey Rhind, the well-known sculptor of New York. This

VEHICLE LIGHTS CLARA BARTON Is Seriously Ill at Glen Echo, Md.

Representative Marchand's bill relative to the placing of lights on all vehicles used on the public highways came up for a hearing before the committee on roads and bridges at the state house yesterday. Among those who spoke on the bill besides Rep. Marchand were Charles J. Glidden of Lowell, Representative Washburn of Worcester, Louis R. Spence, president of the Massachusetts State Automobile association; William C. Thibodeau, Medical Examiner George Burgess McGrath of Suffolk county, and others.

OFFICIALS RESIGN SOMETHING DOING POLITICALLY IN CARLISLE

There would appear to be something doing politically in Carlisle, for W. C. Nickles has resigned as a selectman, W. C. Hadley has resigned as auditor, and F. H. Billington has resigned from the school board. There is also a vacancy on the board of overseers. B. F. Blaisdell has served during the year by appointment of the selectmen. H. T. Chamberlain has been appointed auditor.

The town farm has paid its running expenses and more. The appropriation is untouched. The town has received $1265.73, state school money, $155 more than last year. This is interesting because of the report that the town was not to receive any this year.

The school committee reports an unexpended balance of $49.62, which if recommended be used toward cancelling the school house bond of $500. It also recommends that $1700 be appropriated this year instead of $2165 as last year. This will make $3000 less to be assessed after the annual meeting than last year, and will obviate the necessity of another "April 1st" meeting. It also recommends a small appropriation for new equipment.

DRAFT OF BILL FOR SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE COMPLETED

JERSON, Feb. 11.—The draft of the bill for the separation of church and state has been completed. It guarantees liberty of conscience, education and propaganda subject to simple control. The churches will be placed at the disposal of the clergy, the only stipulation being that the clergy must show they are able to keep them up.

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST HAVE SNOW CLEARED FROM PREMISES

"Snow, snow, beautiful snow," etc., is all very well to either write or read about, but when it comes to the job of clearing the snow from the sidewalk it is another matter and a task which the average man is not anxious to tackle, but there is a law which compels persons to clear the snow from in front of their property and if the work is not done they are liable to arrest.

The law is specific and reads as follows: "The tenant, occupant, and in case there shall be no tenant, the owner, agent, or the person having the care of any building or lot of land bordering on any street, lane, court, square, or public place, within the city, where there is any foot-way or sidewalk, shall cause all the snow and ice to be removed from such sidewalk."

"If the snow shall fall in the day time, it shall be removed from the sidewalk within four hours from the time it shall have ceased falling. In the night time, it shall be removed by twelve o'clock at noon of the day succeeding; and all ice shall be removed within twenty-four hours after the same shall form upon the sidewalk."

"And this section shall apply to snow or ice which may have fallen from any building, and to ice formed from water running or accumulating upon any sidewalk."—Gen. Ord. 27, Sec. 11.

FIRST PENTECOSTAL CHURCH

Participants in the Evangelistic services being conducted at the First Pentecostal church on First street, are expecting a great day Sunday. The services will be held at 10.30 a. m., 3.30 in the afternoon and 7 o'clock in the evening. Rev. J. Wesley Lee, a stirring Evangelistic speaker from the west, will preach, and Mrs. F. Ednah Reynolds, gospel soloist from Waldoboro, Me., will sing at every service.

Her mother sat near her during the proceedings, and sobbed bitterly when sentence was pronounced.

Says Anti-Combination Laws Injure the Small Dealers

operators of Illinois and Indiana from unwilling to raise prices, were declared at a convention of the operators here yesterday to be the ruin of the industry and driving the small operator into bankruptcy.

Many coal mines in Illinois and Indiana have closed down and working half time and coal is said to be selling below actual cost of production. The demand and the trade is generalized, according to the operators who are meeting to devise ways and means of improving the situation.

Walter Bogie, one of the meeting, and a committee of 18 operators opponent to the anti-trust law so as to allow the operators to combine to maintain steady and uniform prices. The present law against combinations operates to cause the very conditions it was intended to prevent, said Mr. Bogie.

"We do not wish to form a combination in restraint of trade," he continued, but, under existing conditions, small operators are being forced to the wall, the smaller properties are being merged and the big companies get all the business. Instead of the laws preventing the industry from falling into the hands of a few it actually is forcing that condition."

GREAT FINANCIER

Baron Rothschild, Head of Banking House, Dead

VIENNA, Feb. 11.—Baron Albert Rothschild, head of the Austrian branch of the Rothschild house, died today. He was born in 1844.

The death recalls the romance of the baron's youngest son, Oskar, who died suddenly in the Rothschild palace here July, 1902, following the breaking of his marriage engagement with Miss Olga Menn, daughter of Rudolph Menn of Chicago. It was widely reported that Baron Oskar committed suicide by shooting, though the family asserted that death was due to apoplexy.

During the year preceding, the young man made a tour of America and met Miss Menn and they became engaged. His father objected to the match and Oskar returned to his home, dying two days after he reached Vienna. He was 21 years old.

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS BETRAYED THEIR CONSTITUENTS

There is a good deal of opposition among democrats on account of the passage of the ship subsidy bill in the senate by the casting vote of President Sherman of that body. The vote stood 37 to 37 when the president of the senate decided the contest by voting in favor of the measure.

The strange feature of the situation is that while democrats all over the country were criticizing the measure as a raid upon the public treasury, the bill might have been easily defeated if the democratic senators had done their duty. At the very time when the senate voted upon this bill there were nine democratic senators who did not vote at all, and among these were some of the most distinguished democratic shouters in the entire senate, including Senator Bailey of Texas, Gore and Owen of Oklahoma, Rayner of Maryland, Jeff Davis of Arkansas, Money of Mississippi, Watson of West Virginia, and Bacon of Georgia.

These senators deliberately evaded going on record on this measure. Young Senator Watson, who appeared in the senate for the first time as successor to Senator Elkins, voted on another measure a few hours before the division on the subsidy bill and then deliberately walked out of the chamber leaving another senator to state that he was called away on important business. They were all away "on important business." But what are the senators sent to Washington for, if not to protect their constituents against such public plunder as this ship subsidy bill contemplates?

This bill was fathered by Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, and it is a proposition under which the sum of $40,000,000 may be paid out of the national treasury in ten years as a free gift to private corporations for about thirty ships to be used on lines to South and Central America and some other ports. The alleged object is to rehabilitate the American merchant marine, which needs some method of restoration to life. The proposition is to pay $4,000,000 annually to private corporations on condition that these companies will build ships to be used in carrying United States mails. It can be easily foreseen that only the favored ones will get this money, and it will enable concerns now defunct to build ships at the government's expense ostensibly to carry the mails and engage in trade, but they may be eventually diverted to other uses if the owners see fit.

One of Senator Gallinger's propositions is, that these vessels when constructed will ply between this country and the ports of South America establishing commercial lines which will afterwards be taken up by private concerns. Senator Newlands of Nevada proposed a substitute for this subsidy measure under which the government would build the ships at $1,000,000 each, then lease them to private concerns to carry the mails and establish commercial lines as proposed under the Gallinger bill. That would not enrich the private concerns that are howling for the subsidies and as a result Senator Newland's amendment was defeated. The Gallinger bill might also have been defeated but for the perfidy and open betrayal of their constituents by a number of democratic senators.

It is true that the merchant marine of the United States has disappeared from the seas, and it is equally true that some practical method should be adopted to revive it, but that method should not be one that will take $40,000,000 out of the public treasury to be handed over to private concerns for the purpose of building ships to be afterwards used in a profitable business for the ownership.

The Gallinger proposition is a species of public robbery; the Newland substitute was the only sensible plan put forward to meet the situation. It would have the ships built and owned by the government, then leased to private concerns and at the same time held as a reserve for the United States navy in case of necessity. The seamen employed would be under naval discipline and after the government had opened commercial lines then private companies could begin to participate in the business. Thus the government would have been saved the amount of money to be expended and would build up the merchant marine, while the ships employed would always be ready to respond in case of need by the naval authorities.

If United States senators were elected by the people they would not prove so recreant to their duty as did the democrats mentioned. Furthermore if many of the representatives had not been defeated at the polls, they would not be so ready to support a measure of this kind that pays out many millions of money to be handed over as a free gift to shipping companies.

THE BOSTON ELEVATED AND THE TROLLEY EXPRESS

For some time past an agitation has been in progress for a trolley express from Boston to Lowell, to serve all the intervening cities and towns at the same time. A similar plan was to be put in operation between Boston and other outlying cities and towns, and altogether a great deal was expected from the opening up of this trolley express system. It was hoped that it would assist in the development of the farms lying along the inter-urban lines; that it would enable the farmers to get their produce quickly to the markets and at the same time facilitate the transportation of supplies from the cities and towns.

The Boston and Northern Street Railway company, it seems, has secured the necessary permits after considerable trouble from Lowell to Boston, but the Elevated road objects to allowing the company to enter the city of Boston. That appears now to be the only snag that holds back the trolley express. Thus a single company, doing business in Boston, would prevent an enterprise, intended to benefit a large portion of the state. If the trolley express should prove beneficial in this locality or on the line between Boston and Lowell, it would soon be adopted all over the state, and would undoubtedly be attended with good results in affording means of transporting merchandise that would greatly lessen the present express rates. For some years past the merchants of New England have been complaining of the steadily increasing express rates.

They have appealed in vain for a reduction, the express companies being so strong that they can afford to turn a deaf ear to such appeals. It is plain, therefore, that the Boston Elevated company stands against the interests of the entire state, and that the legislature should interfere to grant the Boston & Northern company the privilege of entering Boston in spite of all opposition. The people of the state want the trolley express, and the question comes as to whether their interests or those of the Elevated railway in Boston will prevail. The Boston Elevated is running things with a high hand so far as Boston is concerned, but it should not be allowed to block the progress of the rest of the state. That is what it is attempting to do at the present time in preventing the Boston & Northern from entering Boston with the trolley express. The merchants of New England are interested in this contest and should see to it that the dog in the manger policy of the Boston Elevated will be quickly overruled.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

The fourth annual meeting of the Eastern Massachusetts Section of the Classical Association of New England will be held in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts on Saturday. Addresses will be made by Prof. W. K. Denison of Tufts; Wm. F. Abbott of the Classical High School, Worcester; Eugene A. Hecker, of the Roxbury Latin School; Aristides E. Phourides of Cairo; Prof. George H. Chase of Harvard; and Prof. J. L. Manatt of Brown.

A recent addition to the curiosities of the Dartmouth college library is a collection of plaster casts of the hands of famous men, both living and dead. This collection, which is the gift of Kendall Banning, 1902, contains casts of the hands of Voltaire, Goethe, Rubinstein, Lincoln, William Morris Hunt, Walt Whitman, Mark Twain, Thomas A. Edison, Richard Watson Gilder and Andrew Carnegie.

Mrs. Bessie Sain, 90 years old, of Topeka, Kan., has registered at the state capital as a lobbyist for woman suffrage. She is too feeble to visit the state house in person, but will do the work by telephone and by correspondence with the legislators.

There is a proposal in the borough of Natick, Eng., the birthplace of George Eliot, to erect a memorial to the famous novelist. The memorial marks her birthplace, but there is no other memorial of the woman in the town. The present plan is either to buy the schoolhouse which she attended or else have a statue of Adam Bede set up. The original of Adam Bede is supposed to have been the novelist's father.

Earl Baldwin Smith, "I, Brunswick," has been awarded by the faculty of Bowdoin college the Charles Carroll

Everett scholarship of $500 for graduate study in 1911-12. This scholarship is derived from the income of certain real estate, once owned by the family of the late Dean Everett, a graduate of Bowdoin in 1850. Smith, '11, prepared for Bowdoin at Westboro, Mass., high school, and at Pratt institute. He has been art editor of his class annual, "popular man" on ivy day, an editor of the college monthly, a prominent football player, a member of the Good Government club, Deutscher Verein, Student council, and the Psi Upsilon fraternity. He will specialize in the history of art.

George B. McClellan, ex-mayor of New York, is to be professor of either public affairs or political economy at Princeton university, unless the plans of his friends, who have been active in his behalf, go awry. It is announced that arrangements have been made for founding the chair in the university which McClellan will occupy. He is likely to take up his new duties next fall at the latest. The sum needed to endow the new professorship is set at $50,000, and some of the ex-mayor's friends several weeks ago undertook to raise this sum. It is said that nearly all of the $50,000 has been subscribed.

Five students, selected by the Turkish government by competitive examination, are now on the way to Columbia university. Three of these will have scholarships which were placed at the disposal of the Turkish government by Columbia, and the remaining two will have scholarships directly from their home government.

This will be the first time that Turkish students have come to this country under the patronage of the Ottoman government. The negotiations for the visit of the students were arranged by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, John Riggly Carter, acting minister to the United States at Constantinople, and Rifat Pasha, Turkish minister of foreign affairs. The plan was first broached last spring, before Oscar Straus resigned his post as ambassador, but it was not completely worked out until Mr. Carter took charge of the consular affairs. The Turkish students possess a good knowledge of English. They were nominated for the scholarships by the Turkish ministry of public instruction. They will be placed under the direction of one of the professors, who will look after them during their stay in New York. They will be lodged at the university and everything will be done to make them comfortable.

TALK ON BRAZIL

The boys and their parents are invited to a lecture on Brazil to be delivered by Rev. J. M. Kyle at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association at 745 O'Connell street, Saturday evening. The talk will be illustrated by many stereoscopic views. Mr. Kyle spent many years in this country, having just returned a short time ago.

Any friends who may care to attend will be welcome.

ANTI-ALIEN BILLS

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 11.—Three anti-alien bills were introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator Finn, republican and union boss of San Francisco. One provides for segregation of Japanese, Chinese and Hindu children in public schools. A second gives municipalities the right to segregate the races in prescribed areas. The third provides against a holding of land by aliens.

EYES RED, WOULD BURN AND STING

Grew Constantly Worse, Could Hardly Work Any More, Used Cuticura Remedies, and in Six Weeks She Was Cured.

"It is just a year ago that my sister came over here to us. She had been here only a few weeks when her eyes began to be red, and to burn and sting as if she had sand in them. They wept all of the time, and she was unable to do any work. She used all of the home remedies, but they did not help her. She was told to use Cuticura, and she did so. In six weeks her eyes were cured, and she was able to go to work again. The doctor said it was a very severe case, and if she did not follow his orders she might lose her eyesight. He made her eyes burn and applied electricity to them, and gave her various ointments. In the two and a half or three months that she was under the doctor, we could see very little improvement."

"Then we had read to much how people had been cured by Cuticura, and we thought we would try it, and we cannot be thankful enough that we used it. My sister used the Cuticura Pills for purifying the blood, bathed only with Cuticura Soap, and at night after washing, she anointed her eyes very gently on the outside with the Cuticura Ointment. In one week the swelling was entirely gone from the eyes, and after a month, there was no longer any mucus or watering of the eyes. She could already see better, and in six weeks she was cured." (Signed) Mrs. J. J. Cespeleska, 2006 Utah St., St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25, 1910.

Many severe affections of the eyelids are cured by Cuticura. The Cuticura Remedies used judiciously seldom fail to prove beneficial in such cases. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, for free booklet.

BURSARS BANQUET

REGENT OF BRUNSWICK ISSUES A WARNING

BREMEN, Feb. 11.—Duke Johann Albrecht of Mecklenburg, regent of Brunswick, uttered a remarkable warning to Germans of all classes in speaking last night at the annual bursars' banquet, which was attended by leading commercial men, ship owners, manufacturers and army officers.

"The call should go up here before it is too late. Everybody to work! I appeal to shipbuilders, ship owners, mine owners, industrial men and all others to draw the disaster of the whole people for the benefit of the whole and thus secure a proper position among nations for German commerce and shipping."

THE WIDOW'S MITE

VALUES PLACED ON LIVES OF WORKMEN KILLED

An ambulance backed up to No. 17 Bond street, Chicago, Abe Miller was in the ambulance. His wife now had to face the world unaided, for Abe, who was a worker in a steel mill, while handling hot metal had been burned and died from the injuries. A three mile notice in a list of accidents in one newspaper was all the world at large overheard of his death. The community settled for $500 and promised permanent employment to Abe's wife. She went to work and her inadequate earnings were supplemented by charitable relief, says the Survey Press Bureau.

The circumstances of Abe's misfortune are fairly typical of fifty other accidents of which information was obtained through charitable organizations in ten of the largest cities of the country. A tere and a bale of hay caused one of the most dramatic mine disasters in industrial history. An angry dove and 267 of his fellow workmen lost their lives. For weeks the press of the country pulsed with stories of thrilling rescues by a heroic gang of men who finally perished in an act of supreme sacrifice. Twenty-one men buried alive for eight days were saved. Ministers made the disaster the chief for serious that afflicted profoundly the imagination and sympathy of the public. This publicity acted with compelling force upon the employing company, the generous public, city councils and the state legislature.

Andrew Davis's family received $160 from the company that employed him, and nearly as much again from public contributions, miners' unions and the legislature. Fate decreed that Abe Miller should die all alone from a violent accident, and as a consequence his widow received less than one-seventh the sum she would have enjoyed had her husband clung to be in the mine at Cherry. But her need as a widow would have been unchanged by the fact that her husband was one of 258 to be killed. Luck was simply against her.

Fortune is almost always against the widows of husbands who are killed one at a time in industrial accidents. The Miller's widow fared better than many. The families of the fifty men referred to who suffered obscure deaths received in compensation $749 or $187 apiece. The fifty Cherry families received from the company $30,000—$188 apiece.

In the case of Cherry, on account of the publicity and activity of the Good Cause, the mine and business associations, fifty families received in contributions, from the state and from unions, $87,000, in addition to what the company gave, making a total of $177,000. The other fifty families received besides the $8,749, an indefinite amount in relief and pensions, and from charity societies, and a still more indefinite sum from institutions, nurseries, hospitals, etc.

In 115 cases of married men killed by industrial accidents in Erie county, New York, the families received nothing in thirty-eight cases and the compensation in nine was $100 or less. Thirty-four families got from $100 to $500, and fourteen from $501 to $2000. In only eight cases was over $2000 given to the families. Substantially similar figures were shown by an investigation in Pittsburg where out of 253 cases of married men killed in 124, or 52 per cent, the compensation was either nothing or $100 and under. In but eight cases was the award over $2000.

A car inspector lost his life in a crib fire at Chicago. He left a wife and three children, aged seven, four and two years. He earned $750 a year. The employer offered $1500 in settlement. This offer was not accepted, and suit was begun and was still pending after two years and three months.

Had the laws of the following countries been in operation in Illinois the family would have received aid in the form of annual pensions in the total amounts given below:

Austria, until youngest child is fifteen	$1265.25
France, until youngest child is fifteen	$513.50
Germany, until youngest child is fifteen	$5062.50
Great Britain, three times annual wages	$2260.00
Hungary, until youngest child is sixteen	$5315.06
Italy, purchase of annuities until eighteen	$3760.00
Norway, until youngest child is fifteen	$1268.38
Russia	$5593.60

The compensation to the victim of fifty fatal accidents, which were contrasted with the fifty cases at Cherry, ranged from $500 to nothing. In two cases $7000 each was awarded, but they were appealed from court to court and the victims finally got nothing. The uncertainty and delay had a most demoralizing effect. These people set their expectations on sums of money that would make them independent, huge fortunes in their eyes, and after living in this anticipation, adopting a scale of living accordingly, so far as they could, they were finally disappointed and got nothing.

Some of these excessive awards were an injustice to the employer, but when they were reversed and nothing was received, it certainly was an injustice to the employee. These engenders bad feeling between employer and employee. The manufacturing and business concerns of this country have in the last five years paid to casualty companies in premiums $95,000,000. Less than $45,000,000 has gone in settlement of damages, and less than half of this $45,000,000 has reached injured persons. After expenses' fees, court costs and other law expenses were met, not more than 20 or 30 per cent of the whole sum actually reached the families of those killed and injured.

"It is estimated that one accident out of eleven is prosecuted in the courts and that one out of ten thousand is successful," says the report of the commission on industrial accidents in Washington. This enormous expense has, of course, been added to the cost of manufactured products. If this fund could be taken from the war basis on which it rests, it seems altogether likely that the money which employing concerns are already expending, would go a long way to meet the needs of a just, fair and adequate compensation.

To Burn a Wooden Building in Dutton Street

Room Shut Down But No Help Discharged

Employees of Closed Department Transferred to Other Positions — Kitson Company Running on 45 Hour Time

The report that the Lowell machine shop laid off another crew of men last night is happily erroneous and the report evidently started from the fact that the shop shut down a planning room in which but few men, comparatively speaking, were employed at the present time. The men in the planning room did not lose their work, however, for they were transferred to other departments in which there is plenty of work for the present.

When running full time the "Big Shop" employs about 2000 hands, mostly skilled mechanics. The first lay-off of recent times came about last Thanksgiving and since then about 500 have been laid off, or nearly half the full complement.

The shop never shuts down and would run with only a few men. It is said that the charter of the company provides that the shop must run at all times.

But the "Big Shop" is by no means as badly off at present as it has been in former years. Back in the '80s during a period of curtailment and slack business the working force dwindled down to 300 men. During the panic in the early '90s the help was also greatly reduced. At no time has the shop gone below 500 employees.

In its early days, almost a century ago, the "Big Shop" produced the first locomotives ever manufactured in New England, but afterward abandoned this class of work for the manufacture of textile machinery. At present the shop is working on cotton and woolen machinery and is manufacturing quite a number of looms.

Some of the employees cannot believe that the present curtailment is due to lack of business for the textile trade papers each week contain accounts of new mills being built throughout the country, and as the "Big Shop" is one of the leading producers of textile machinery they are at a loss to account for the apparent dullness. The "Big Shop" is running from 6:30 to 5:30 five days a week, while the Kitson Machine shop has curtailed to 45

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—Deciding the intercollegiate championships indoors, in fact if not in name, by reason of the most complete representation of eastern colleges and including also several hundreds of the best of the athletic performers of this country and Canada, as well as many prominent schoolboy athletes, the annual Boston Athletic association meet in Mechanics building tonight comprises the greatest athletic meeting of the year. A record entry list for even this classic was obtained, 620 athletes signifying their intention to compete.

To the usual program of individual competition, ten events, interspersed in the past with nearly a score of relay races among the colleges and between leading athletic clubs, there was added this year a new event, the "Hunter invitation mile". Its name is taken from a local clubman, who donated as a prize a valuable cup to be won by the same college or club three times for permanent possession. This "race" promised the keenest competition of the night, the expected starters including George V. Bonhag and Abel R. Kiviat of the Irish-American A. C., New York; O. F. Hedlund, Brookline; G. A. A. J. P. Jones and T. S. Doria of Cornell; P. S. Harmon and P. R. Macrae of Dartmouth; and John J. Tait of Toronto, Ontario. This Ontario runner, while not used to indoor running, is expected to put up a terrific performance. He is one of the very few runners who has beaten Bonhag, the indoor American champion, and is regarded as the fastest miler the province of Ontario has ever produced.

Texas Ramsdell, Pennsylvania, 100 yards, C. D. Reldpath, Syracuse, 440 yards, J. W. Burdick, Pennsylvania, high jump, George Chisholm, Yale, high hurdles, J. P. Jones, Cornell, cross country, and T. S. Doria, Cornell, two mile, are the leading college champions entered.

Other prominent club and college men are George Bonhag, American middle distance champion; J. R. Kilpatrick, Yale; R. C. Foster, Harvard; W. V. Cox, R. A. A., former world's champion shotputter, and Jack Monahan, Irish-American A. C., National mile champion.

Most of the athletes were in the city over night, but the squad from Yale and other individuals and teams arrived during the day.

The great gathering of college men enabled the New England Intercollegiate association to hold its annual meeting during the day, at which the place of holding the championship meet was discussed. It was predicted during the forenoon that the games would be returned to Worcester after several years on Technology field in Brookline.

Have Told Me So," the first time the selection has been given in this country. So expressively did Frank give this number, encores were in order and later on about everybody in Wakefield wanted to know where copies of the song could be secured. Frank has only one copy and they say it is going to some musically inclined person in Wakefield or Stoneham. That's what the Bachelors say.

John J. Dalton's "Answer" was a big number on the program and the ease with which Mr. Dalton, although suffering from a cold, reached the high notes, and the volume of his voice were a surprise to the audience.

James E. Donnelly, dressed in kills, gave his imitations of Harry Lauder and so cleverly was his work that many really believed that he was a Scotchman. Mr. Donnelly was obliged to respond to several encores.

Wm. Cookin sang the famous Stein song and made a pronounced impression. His rich voice was heard to the best advantage and easily filled the large hall. The band which accompanied the Bachelors was a most excellent one, and the audience in rapt with his songs and witticisms.

Undoubtedly the Bachelors will be in demand in the different towns near Wakefield in the future for many residents of these places were present at last night's affair.

To Burn a Wooden Building in Dutton Street

An unsuccessful attempt to destroy the large wooden building at 527 Dutton street belonging to Israel Greenburg was made last night by an incendiary. The upper portion of the house is unoccupied at the present time and the building for all probability would have been destroyed but for the early discovery by Mrs. Mary A. Calvert who resides in the next building.

Mrs. Calvert's attention was attracted to the blaze about 11 o'clock when she opened the door of her shed to allow her cat to enter the house. She saw the glare of light in the adjoining building and immediately notified Patrolman Richard J. Goggin.

The officer gained an entrance to the building after smashing a window frame, and found two distinct fires in one of the rooms in the rear of the building. That the fires had been set was very evident, for in the centre of the room was a large can of benzine on fire, while a few feet away was a pile of rubbish which was burning in a brisk manner.

Chief E. S. Hosmer of the fire department and the police, after making an investigation, are of the opinion that the attempt to fire the building was a deliberate one. Inspector Martin Meher is working on the case and interviewed several people this morning relative to what they knew about the affair.

According to what could be learned, the last two people to leave the building last night were a paper hanger, a painter, both men were working on the interior of the building. One of these men was seen this morning by a representative of The Sun, but he said he did not know the first thing about the fire. The only unusual thing he noticed was that the front door of the building was unlocked when he arrived at 7:45 o'clock this morning. The door was locked when he left the building last night. Therefore, it is very evident that the person who started the fires had a key to the building.

The interior of the house is being painted and papered and the paint and oils, together with some benzine, were kept in one of the small rooms in the rear of the building.

The incendiary after dumping some coals on the floor piled wallpaper on the cake and then saturated the pile with benzine and applied the match. The work was removed from one of the benzine cans and later a match was applied to the contents.

It was the flames from the benzine can that attracted the attention of Mrs. Calvert, and when the police officer entered the building the first thing he did was to throw the can out the snow covered roof of an adjoining building and later stamp out the fire in the pile of coke and wallpaper.

There was a small stove in the room where the fires were found, but according to the officer there was no fire in the stove at the time he entered, therefore, the fires could not have been caused by the heat or a spark from the stove.

50 MINISTERS

WERE ALARMED BY A PRACTICAL JOKER

BANGOR, Me., Feb. 11.—The faculty of the Bangor theological seminary has started a rigid investigation to discover if possible the perpetrators of a practical joke that annoyed about 50 ministers who were here for convocation week and were sleeping on cots in the gymnasium, which is used for a dormitory.

Shortly after midnight yesterday the ministers were awakened by a terrific crash, followed by loud deep rumblings like thunder.

The ministers ran out into the snow, many of them clad only in pajamas, thinking there had been a boiler explosion or something of the sort.

As soon as the excitement had subsided and an investigation was made it was found someone had collected all the big balls from the bowling alley and arranged them on a settee suspended above the running track.

By means of a rope leading out through a window the settee was upset and the balls dropped from a considerable height and were set rolling around the running track directly over the heads of the sleeping ministers, producing an effect most startling.

JOSEPH A. LEGARE

Will Accept the Postmastership

Hope springs eternal in the breast of the candidate for postmaster and while word has been received to the effect that Joseph A. Legare is, Congressman Ames, choice for postmaster and that Mr. Legare has accepted the proffered appointment, there is a lot of opinion in the campaign by mail of the several other candidates for they are of the opinion that the appointment, if made, will not go by the senate. They argue in the first place that even if Congressman Ames has made the offer to Mr. Legare it is merely as a matter of courtesy and that the congressman would rather have Mr. Legare's services personally than to turn them over to Uncle Sam. In the second place they are inclined to the belief that Mr. Legare's appointment is the one appointment to which Senator Lodge might object and that in the event of an objection on his part the senate might not confirm the appointment, making it necessary for the congressman to make a second choice.

Report had it last evening that assessor Albert Blazon, a close personal friend and prospective law partner of Mr. Legare had gone to Washington while this morning another report was about to the effect that ex-Senator McKim, a candidate for the position had suddenly gone out of town, presumably to Washington.

NEWS OF THE MILLS

The Tremont and Suffolk Has Made Great Progress

Change to Electric Power and the Very Latest Machinery—Dividends by This and Other Mills—The Mohair Plush Company

Comparatively few people not actually employed in the cotton mills have a comprehensive idea of the magnitude of that industry and in order to appreciate it one must at least be shown through one of those busy hives of industry, where thousands of looms weave and spin.

Through the courtesy of Agent Connell of the Tremont & Suffolk mills, a reporter of The Sun was shown through the most important sections of that plant yesterday afternoon. This Tremont & Suffolk mills number 16 in all and to visit the whole of these one would need at least a whole day.

Dust and Dirt Eliminated
Besides being interested in the various machines, operating with more than human precision, the reporter was impressed with the cleanliness that prevailed in the different rooms and departments. The dust and dirt that floated through these rooms under former conditions are things of the past. Their elimination is due to the genius of man and instead of the dust and dirt remaining in the room to be taken into the lungs of the operatives, the whole is carried away by a sort of suction cleaner, a series of big pipes that carries it to a mammoth receptacle on the outside of the mill. The reporter noticed that all of the work rooms were clean, light and airy and that the operatives seemed happy.

All New Machinery
There was a time, and not many years ago, when the Tremont & Suffolk was loaded with old, rickety machinery but that day has passed and gone. Since Mr. Connell's time as agent over $1,000,000 worth of new machinery has been installed and looking down the long avenues of machinery in these big mills today one notes the easy pulsation of new and im-

IN POLICE COURT MAYOR MEEHAN

Small Docket Before Judge Hadley Today

Finds Eight Nationalities in One School

This morning's session of the police court proved to be a very short one, there being but a few offenders before the court.

Philip Dussault was charged with drunkenness and being an idle and disorderly person. He admitted that he had been drinking, but denied being idle and disorderly. Patrolmen Breault and Groux testified that the young man spent his time hanging around liquor saloons and poolrooms. He was sent to the state farm.

Harvey Barrette, who a few days ago was sentenced to the state farm after being found guilty of being idle and disorderly, and appeared, appeared in court this morning and withdrew the appeal.

John Porter was under a suspended sentence of three months in jail, but violated the conditions of his probation and was surrendered. This morning the suspension was revoked and he will spend the next three months in jail. Joan Kierzan was also given a sentence of three months in jail.

Joseph Lamontagne, charged with being drunk, was found guilty and a fine of $6 was imposed.

SILVER WEDDING

OBSERVED BY COUPLE WELL KNOWN IN LOWELL

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Bourke of Worcester, both well known in this city, observed their silver wedding in a quiet way Thursday. The affair was organized by a committee formed among the three Worcester branches of Les Artisans Canadiens Français, of which society Mr. Bourke is the organizer general for the United States.

The celebration commenced with a solemn high mass in the parish church, which was followed by a dinner and a grand reception in the evening. The latter was held in Thule hall and was attended by over 500 people.

The venerable couple were presented with a purse containing 25 silver dollars and a beautiful silver chest, and many other gifts.

Among the guests were people from New Bedford, Springfield, Auburn, Me., Fall River and Lowell. Mr. Ludger Gravel, president general of the Artisans, and a member of the board of directors Mr. L. G. Bertrand, both of Montreal, Que., were also present. Mr. Gravel is expected in Lowell the first of next week.

BURNS WON

TOMMY FUREY OF ATTLEBORO WAS DEFEATED

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 11.—In the 15-round main event at the Rhode Island A. C. at the New York last night, Kid Burns, the New York pugilist, was awarded the decision by Referee Abbott over Tommy Furey of Attleboro, Mass. Burns won on points.

Furey did not come up to the expectations of the sports who have seen him in the matches recently, in which he defeated Dick Howell and Bill Donovan, the latter a 150 pounder. Furey was credited with remarkable boxing ability and considerable science after the latter contest, and his friends were quite ready to pit him against almost anybody near his class.

Burns is a dashing fighter, however, and last night he made the contest with Furey an aggressive one. There was a lot of fast and clever boxing, in which Burns clearly scored the majority of points, and the decision could hardly have been otherwise.

Some of the ringside spectators considered Burns able to do much more execution than he did last night. Furey did not have the force in his blows to ward the New Yorker along sufficiently, it appeared.

In the preliminary matches Young Miller of Pawtucket defeated Young Brusso of Attleboro. It was a somewhat lively mixup, in which Brusso had for a time much the better, but because of his swordlike slants with a long reach.

Billy Raven, the South Providence terror, defeated Mike Masse, who faced him in place of Young Loughery, who was scheduled for the six-round affair.

ACCEPTED BY CITY COUNCIL OF LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 11.—Members of the city council voted last night to accept the offer of Andrew Carnegie to provide $250,000 for the erection of six library buildings in the city.

It had been suggested that Mr. Carnegie should build one central library but in his letter he declares he did not believe in a central library for a large city and would provide six small ones instead.

SECOND FLOOR

In his continued tour of investigation of public buildings, especially school houses, Mayor Meehan is becoming more and more interested in the cosmopolitan complexion of our schools, for he finds the great social question mirrored there.

In a class room of one of the primary schools he found eight different nationalities represented. "Our schools, especially the primary schools," said the mayor, "would convince even the stranger that our is a cosmopolitan city and it's a sight good for the eyes to see little ones of foreign birth being educated in our language, our customs and our ways."

Upon inquiry among the teachers of the mayor finds that the average child of foreign birth is very eager to learn our language and most of them are studious and well behaved.

In the ninth grade of the Green school the mayor saw sitting side by side, a full blooded American Indian, a Chinaman and a Belgian. The Belgian is 27 years old and is very desirous of entering the high school and is bending his best efforts in that direction.

Canadian Pacific Made An Early Advance of 1 1/2—General Market Stiffened When Consolidated Gas and Missouri Pacific Advanced

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The stock market opened dull today, most of the issues selling at about the level of last night's close. The only feature was Canadian Pacific, which advanced 1 1/2.

International Harvester gained 3/4 and Missouri Pacific 1/2, while U. P. and Reading yielded slightly.

The general market stiffened in sympathy with an advance of nearly a point in Consolidated Gas and Missouri Pacific. The rise uncovered selling orders which caused a reaction to below yesterday's closing, Reading losing 1/2.

The market closed firm. A further advance in the Canadian Pacific group and a decline in certain specialties impelled a degree of short covering which advanced the list sharply from the low level. Trading, however, was altogether without definite purpose. International Paper fell 1/4 and the bid 2 1/4.

WEDDING HALTED GRANTED PARDON

Bride Had to be Taken That He Might See Dying Mother

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 11.—Fire interrupted the wedding of William Grasser and Nellie Grasser, which was taking place in the office of a justice of the peace on the third floor of the Court square building yesterday and necessitated the young woman being carried down a ladder by Capt. Parker of the fire department and Clarence K. Hart, a volunteer.

The groom made his escape by the stairways and a few minutes later the flames had been subdued, the couple returned and the ceremony was completed.

The Court square building is at the corner of Market and Newbury streets and for the past two years, since the burning of the city hall, has been occupied largely by city officials.

Yesterday afternoon when all were busy at their respective duties, smoke began pouring up through the elevator wells until it permeated the entire building. Much excitement followed, men and women hurrying down the stairways and crowding the elevators, and several persons in addition to the bride were taken out on ladders. Many of the city records were carried out.

The fire, however, was of little moment and was confined to the basement. The damage was principally by smoke. The loss to the building is estimated at $1500.

Chief Eldredge ordered a second alarm and the fire fighters held the fire where it started, in the basement.

LOST HIS LIFE

AMERICAN DENTIST DROWNED NEAR CEIBA, HONDURAS

BROCKTON, Feb. 11.—The Associated Press despatch from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, last night announcing the death by drowning near Ceiba, Honduras, on Thursday of Dr. H. N. He would be thirty years old tomorrow, if he had lived. He was a graduate of a dental college in Chicago and had practised his profession for a short time in Boston before going to Honduras three years ago. His wife was with him in Honduras.

SUMMER TOURIST RATES

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—The Grand Trunk railroad has given definite notice to the other eastern roads of its intention to stand pat on its summer tourist rates which have been in force during the last two years. BROCKTON, Feb. 11.—The Associated Press despatch from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, last night announcing the death by drowning near Ceiba, Honduras, on Thursday of Dr. H. N. Bumpus, an American dentist, was the first intimation that anything had happened. Dr. Bumpus was a native of this city and had lived here up to a few years ago. He would be thirty years old tomorrow, if he had lived. He was a graduate of a dental college in Chicago and had practised his profession for a short time in Boston before going to Honduras three years ago. His wife was with him in Honduras.

SUMMER TOURIST RATES

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—The Grand Trunk railroad has given definite notice to the other eastern roads of its intention to stand pat on its summer tourist rates which have been in force during the last two years. In the opinion of many eastern passenger officials the action effectively puts a stop to the plans of some of the roads to advance the rate this year.

STOCK MARKET

WAS DULL AT THE OPENING THIS MORNING

Canadian Pacific Made An Early Advance of 1 1/2—General Market Stiffened When Consolidated Gas and Missouri Pacific Advanced

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The stock market opened dull today, most of the issues selling at about the level of last night's close. The only feature was Canadian Pacific, which advanced 1 1/2.

International Harvester gained 3/4 and Missouri Pacific 1/2, while U. P. and Reading yielded slightly.

The general market stiffened in sympathy with an advance of nearly a point in Consolidated Gas and Missouri Pacific. The rise uncovered selling orders which caused a reaction to below yesterday's closing, Reading losing 1/2.

The market closed firm. A further advance in the Canadian Pacific group and a decline in certain specialties impelled a degree of short covering which advanced the list sharply from the low level. Trading, however, was altogether without definite purpose. International Paper fell 1/4 and the bid 2 1/4.

Clearing House Statement

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The statement of clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks held $36,345,560 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $21,750 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week.

Money Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Money on call nominal; no loans.

Time loans dull, with demand slackers. Sixty days 3 per cent and 90 days 3 1/4; six months 3 1/2 @ 3 3/4.

Prime mercantile paper steady at 4 1/2.

Sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers bills at $83.45 @ $83.55 for 60 day bills and at $83.30 for demand. Commercial bills 48 1/2 @ 48 3/4. Bar silver 51 1/2. Mexican dollars 45. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds steady.

WEDDING HALTED GRANTED PARDON

Bride Had to be Taken That He Might See Dying Mother

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 11.—Fire interrupted the wedding of William Grasser and Nellie Grasser, which was taking place in the office of a justice of the peace on the third floor of the Court square building yesterday and necessitated the young woman being carried down a ladder by Capt. Parker of the fire department and Clarence K. Hart, a volunteer.

The groom made his escape by the stairways and a few minutes later the flames had been subdued, the couple returned and the ceremony was completed.

The Court square building is at the corner of Market and Newbury streets and for the past two years, since the burning of the city hall, has been occupied largely by city officials.

Yesterday afternoon when all were busy at their respective duties, smoke began pouring up through the elevator wells until it permeated the entire building. Much excitement followed, men and women hurrying down the stairways and crowding the elevators, and several persons in addition to the bride were taken out on ladders. Many of the city records were carried out.

The fire, however, was of little moment and was confined to the basement. The damage was principally by smoke. The loss to the building is estimated at $1500.

Chief Eldredge ordered a second alarm and the fire fighters held the fire where it started, in the basement.

SUPPORTS GAVE WAY

THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION CHURCH

Immaculate Conception Church Undergoing Extensive Repairs

The Immaculate Conception church in East Merrimack street, conducted by the Oblate Fathers, is undergoing extensive repairs.

HENRY L. ROURKE, Architect.

The work was begun in June and proved to be a very hard and dangerous task, as supports had to be put in from the basement to the roof of the church. The old wooden columns were replaced by steel columns. The plaster work to the base of the main roof had to be stripped off, and in so doing it was further discovered that the trusses supporting the roof of the clear story and the main trusses supporting the roof over the nave of the church, had rotted through, and had to be taken out and replaced by new ones. The lower roof of the clear story was put on the ribs of the old columns in place of using a keene cement which would cost considerably more.

The new plaster arches, capitals and corbels, and all decorations and plaster work will be put back to correspond with the old plaster work. A new feature of the church will be the electrical decorations, which will be carried out in a thorough manner, so as to illuminate all sections of the plaster work.

Just 44 years ago a small boy of 12 joined a certain minstrel troupe. Within the next 10 years that boy had danced himself into the affections of the American public to a remarkable degree, until he was known from coast to coast as one of the greatest minstrels—the old time minstrels—that America has produced.

That boy was George Primrose, for 30 years in company with that other famous minstrel, West, at the head of the Primrose and West Minstrels. Today he is a rich man in his own right, but the old call of the "boogie" still appeals to him. He goes back to the stage again and again, and will always while he lives, he says. George Primrose comes to Lowell next week for the first time in several years, to the Merrimack Square theatre, where he will appear with

"The Blood is The Life"

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or skin-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 653 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

MABEL ESTELLE, Who Will Join the Hathaway Stock Company This Week.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Stage directors say that no comedy drama equals "Our New Minister," a play of New England life, by Denman Thompson, as to popularity with members of stock companies. That is because it contains so many characters that they like to enact. The leading lady has a scene, to quote that eminent critic William Winter, "Unexampled for tragic intensity in any contemporary melodrama."

The leading man is heroic, with valor that appeals to common sense, as well as to romantic imagination. The bad man of the piece is no brute, but a famous intellectual study in cowardice whom the best character actors are fond of portraying.

The ex-convict Ransom, bent on vengeance and his gentle daughter Nance Ransom, are regarded as the best idealization of such natures ever put on the stage.

Then there are the equine and the postmaster, admirable examples of New England farm life. And for re-heving comedy, there are two pairs of extra young folks, to say nothing of a New York bowery boy.

Darius Sturte, town constable, is a pleasing feature and one of the most realistic suggestions of rural life, in fact the feature of the many excellent characters in this pleasing comedy, Denman Thompson, the author, is more familiar to the Lowell theatre-going public as the writer of "The Old Homestead" which play has proven one of the greatest successes before the public for the last twenty years.

"Our New Minister" has been called the most truthfully romantic of all American rural dramas, nothing in it is exaggerated or distorted for the sake of theatrical effect; and for that very reason, its power to amuse audiences, as it is full of refined, wholesome fun, is beyond that of any other modern play.

Consequently the characters are so clearly defined and so effective, that naturally the actors enjoy them as well as the audiences do. That's why there are bound to be good performances of "Our New Minister" as presented by the Donald Meek stock company with Severin DeDeyn, at this popular little playhouse next week. THEATRE VOYONS

Today an exceptional program is offered yesterday at Theatre Voyons and best of all it is an all exclusive show shown in a daylight theatre. The biograph subject "Heart Beats of Long Ago" tells a story full of interest and acted in the exclusive biograph way. The western picture "A Cowboy's Devotedness" tells a thrilling and most dramatic story and the comedy is very good. "On Monday" the feature will be "The Doctor" based on the well known book of the same name and a picture that cannot fail to reach the hearts of all who see it. It tells a connected charming story of a physician's life that is natural and at the same time one that is appealing. A pleasing comedy appropriate to Valentine's day is also a feature.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

If you want to enjoy a good laugh attend the show at the Academy today. The Ten Louisiana Blossoms have a lively skit of plantation life in songs and dances. Piquo is a clever acrobatic pantomimist and Leone and Dale entertain in a musical sketch called "A Lesson in Opera." There will be a sacred concert on Sunday and on Monday an entire change of program. Commencing Monday the vaudeville features will include: Mahoney Brothers and Daisy, comedians and dancers; George Beane and Company, in "A Woman's Way," Mlle. Martha and Oily, the graceful European gymnasts.

"BILL" CARRIGAN SIGNS. BOSTON, Feb. 11.—William J. Carrigan, catcher for the Boston American league baseball team, signed for next season with Pres. John F. Taylor yesterday after several months' hold out. His original grievance was against a bonus contract. The terms on which he signed yesterday were not given out.

GOVERNOR DIX

WILL NOT INTERFERE IN THE SENATORIAL FIGHT.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11.—With Gov. Dix, Charles F. Murphy, William F. Sheehan and other democratic leaders in New York, the handful of legislators who remained here last night expressed the hope that some way out of the senatorial dilemma might be reached here so as to put an end to the deadlock next week. Gov. Dix is expected to talk over the situation with Mayor Gaynor before his return, but there are no present indications that the governor intends to interfere in any way.

The deadlock apparently is as firm as ever. There was no quorum at yesterday's session.

THE OPERA HOUSE

The initial performances of the new stock company to be given today, afternoon and evening, presenting as the first play of its engagement, "The Charity Ball," by David Belasco. The final rehearsals of this play have been given, the company of actors and actresses are busy putting the finishing touches to the stage settings, which are to be entirely new for each act, and everything is in readiness for the opening. The company has been selected with care and is composed of people particularly adapted to the presentation of a high grade of dramatic work and includes: Mary Sanders, formerly of the Castle Square theatre, Boston; Francis Whitehouse, Geraldine Russell, Annetta Cushman, Doris Fox, Forrest Stanley, J. A. McQuarrie, G. J. Haines, Frank Christie, Albert Hanna, P. M. Wright, Russell Clarke, and others. The plays are produced under the direction of Mr. J. H. Huntley, a stage director of wide experience. "The Charity Ball" will be given for two performances today and every afternoon and evening next week, with exception of Friday, when "The Girl from Rector's" will appear for one performance only. The subscription sale for the stock company is now open and patrons wishing to reserve the same seats for each week may do so.

"THE GIRL FROM RECTOR'S." Paul M. Potter, who rose to international fame through his authorship of "Tribby," was paid more royalties on "The Girl from Rector's" last season than was received by any other playwright in New York for a single work. The piece opened at Weber's Music Hall early in January and continued an uninterrupted run of three hundred nights, brought to a close only because contracts for appearances had been made previously.

The receipts at the famous Music Hall grew from the opening evening and night after night the records established by Weber and Fields at the height of their success, were repeatedly shattered.

"The Girl from Rector's" will be seen at the Opera House Feb. 17.

THE VIOLET CLUB

A successful social and dance was held last night in O. U. A. M. Hall in Middle street by the Violet club. The attendance was large and a pleasant evening enjoyed by all. Dillmore's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing, and the officers of the evening were: General manager, Francis Murphy; floor director, Arthur Forbes.

CORNELL MEN

DEFEATED COLUMBIA IN HOCKEY GAME

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Cornell drove another spike into the intercollegiate hockey championship by defeating Columbia 4 to 0 at the St. Nicholas rink last night. The Ithacans have but one game left on the schedule—Dartmouth at Boston, a week from tonight—and this, if won, will clinch the title for Cornell. If the Ithacans lost today and Harvard defeats Yale in the final game of the series on the 18th, the Crimson will tie with Cornell.

APRIL 19th OBSERVANCE

General Committee Discussed Plans for Big Celebration

The committee on the observance of the 50th anniversary of the march through Baltimore of the Sixth Massachusetts regiment, to be held on April 19th, met at the office of Mayor Meehan in city hall yesterday afternoon, and discussed many plans without taking definite action. There was quite a discussion over the amount of money to be appropriated by the city in view of the fact that financial assistance is expected from the state.

Mayor Meehan called to order, and all the members were present except Major Charles A. Stot.

E. B. Pierce submitted a list of men prominent in military and civil walks of life who should be invited to attend the exercises here. This list is not complete, and it was ordered to place it on file, so that from time to time additions may be made. The list as advanced last night was as follows:

President of the United States William H. Taft, Washington, D. C. (special letter); Vice-President of the United States James S. Sherman, Washington, D. C. (special letter); Hon. Jacob M. Dickinson, secretary of war, Washington, D. C.; Major General Leonard Wood, U. S. A., Washington, D. C.; Major General William H. Carter, U. S. A., Washington, D. C.; Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, U. S. A., Washington, D. C.; Major General Fred D. Grant, U. S. A., Governor's Island, N. Y.; Brig. Gen. Henry L. Abbot, U. S. A., Cambridge, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Thos. P. Barr, U. S. A., Boston, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Samuel Bach, U. S. A., Brookline, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Asa B. Carey, U. S. A., Vineyard Harbor, Mass.; Brig. Gen. H. H. Carrington, U. S. A., Hyde Park, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Henry C. Cook, U. S. A., Fall River, Mass.; Brig. Gen. John McE. Hyde, U. S. A., Brookline, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Henry M. Lozelle, U. S. A., Winchester, Mass.; Brig. Gen. S. M. Mansfield, U. S. A., Boston, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Philip H. Read, U. S. A., Lowell, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Clinton B. Sears, U. S. A., Newton Centre, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Charles R. Sater, U. S. A., Brookline, Mass.; Brig. Gen. H. C. Ward, U. S. A., Amherst, Mass.; Maj. Gen. Adelbert Ames, U. S. A., Lowell, Mass.; Hon. Simon E. Baldwin, governor, Hartford, Conn.; Hon. Frederick W. Plafie, governor, Augusta, Me.; Hon. Robert P. Hall, governor, Concord, N. H.; Hon. Aram J. Potliver, governor, Providence, R. I.; Hon. John A. Mead, governor, Vermont; Hon. John A. Dix, governor, Albany, N. Y.; Hon. John K. Tener, governor, Harrisburg, Pa.; Hon. Austin L. Croft, governor, Annapolis, Md. (special letter); Most Rev. W. H. O'Connell, Boston; Hon. Eugene N. Foss, governor, Boston, Mass.; Hon. Louis A. Prothingham, lieutenant governor, mayors of all Massachusetts cities; members of all Massachusetts societies; members of Old Sixth; selectmen of Acton and Stoneham; mayor of Baltimore, Md. (special); mayor of Worcester, Mass. (special); Loyal Legion commander, Massachusetts first lieutenant, C. H. Porter, 18 Central street, Boston, Mass.; G. A. R. commander in chief, John E. Gilman, Boston, Mass.; department commander, J. William Braith, Stoneham, Mass.; department assistant commander, T. H. DeWolfe, Boston, Mass.; Brigadier General E. F. Jones, Binghamton, N. Y.; Lieut. Col. Melvin Dea, Lawrence, Mass.; Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, Hon. W. Murray Crane, Hon. Butler Ames and remaining Massachusetts congressmen.

Mr. Pierce explained that many of the military officers invited are on the retired list, although this did not obtain all through the list. In some instances special invitations will be sent, as indicated on the list.

Alderman Andrew Barrett, a special committee to look up the matter of engraved invitations, reported that the size wanted for the occasion would cost between $50 and $65 per 500. Major Charles S. Proctor believed that 500 would suffice for the observance.

Speaking of the state troops coming here for the day he said that enough money should be voted to feed them well.

Mayor Meehan said that in 1865, when the Ladd & Whitney monument was dedicated, the city spent the sum of $325.

It was voted that the municipal committee meet Tuesday evening at seven o'clock at City Hall, to consider the matter of an appropriation.

Major Proctor believed that $5000 would be necessary for a proper celebration as the guests must be entertained, and several bands of music will be necessary.

Alderman Barrett said that it would be impossible to estimate the exact cost because until the guests arrived nobody would know just who were coming.

Councilman Rogers was opposed to appropriating $5000 and suggested that a smaller amount could be appropriated and later increased. The city, he said, might be obliged to modify its plans if the state should not see fit to give this city a large slice of the proposed $20,000 appropriation.

Mayor Meehan said that he talked with Senator Denney of Worcester a few days ago, and that Mr. Denney had told him when he introduced the bill into the legislature he did not have in mind any special observance in Lowell. He believed in a general observance throughout the various cities and towns of the state.

Alderman Barrett said that personally he believed the city ought to go as far as it could in the appropriation of money. He said that all the committee wanted to get was some assurance that money would be forthcoming.

A banquet was spoken of and Major Proctor said that he had spoken with President Johnson of the school board, and had registered a claim for the use of the High school annex for the affair. He said that Mr. Johnson had said that there would be no more banquets there, but was reminded that the observance would be a municipal affair. He believed Mr. Johnson had taken cognizance of that suggestion and felt that perhaps the annex might be used for the banquet.

Alderman Barrett suggested that the Lowell board of trade be asked to help the affair along as much as possible.

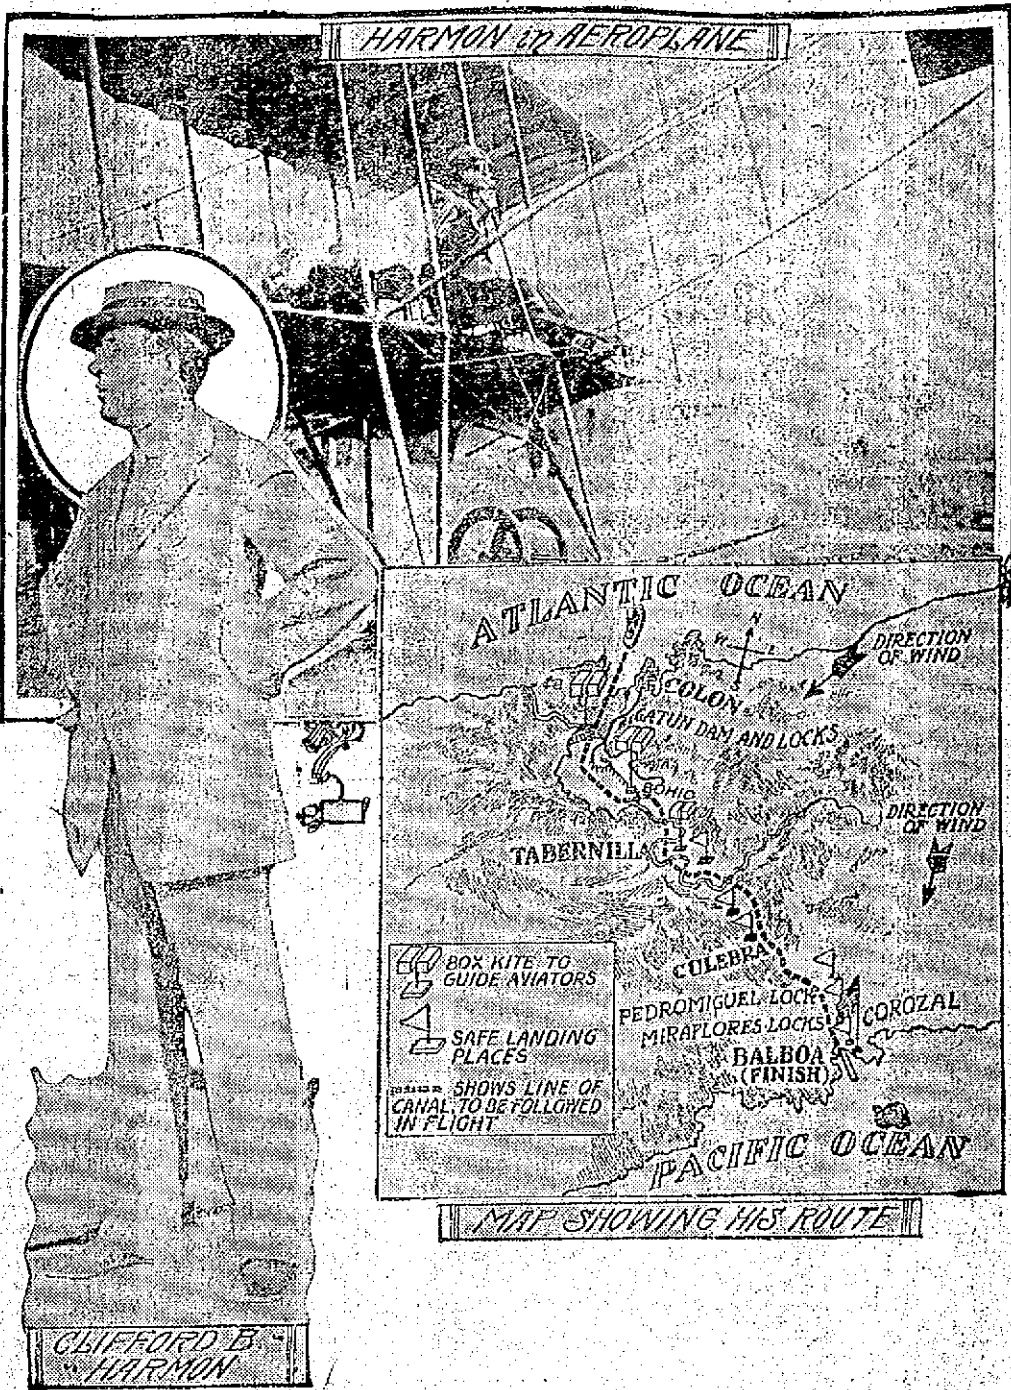

It was voted to leave the matter of selecting the invitations with Mr. Barrett.

Adjourned at 5.15 o'clock.

CLIFFORD B. HARMON TO TRY FLIGHT ACROSS THE ISTHMUS OF PANAMA

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Clifford B. Harmon, the celebrated aviator, has completed his plans for attempting the hazardous venture of flying in an aeroplane from Colon across the isthmus of Panama—from ocean to ocean. He starts from New York Feb. 25 on the steamship Moltke with all his apparatus and assistants. His report will have important influence in determining the attitude of congress toward fortifying the Panama canal, as his course takes him over the big ditch. Experts say aviators could destroy any fortifications erected at the canal by means of dropping bombs from the sky. The topography of the land over which Harmon will fly is such as to produce cross currents and eddies in the lower air strata, these currents paralleling the configuration of the land and being atmospheric disturbances for at least 150 feet above the earth. Therefore, in order to gain the more constant air the aviator should attain a height of from 450 to 550 feet as soon as practicable after the launching, an altitude greater than would be necessary under normal conditions in the United States. By the time the navigator is over Gatun, six miles from the starting point, he should be at least 350 feet up, and above the famous

Culebra cut, three-fourths of the distance between Colon and Panama, he will have attained his greatest height. Of course it is feasible and may be found desirable to go much higher, but the altitude mentioned will be sufficient for the aviator to discern the Har- graves box kites and flags which it is purposed to distribute along the routes—kites to indicate the route and flags to mark available spots for landing. In case the motor goes wrong, a kite placed above Gatun dam will be readily discernible from the ship at the start. Kites also are to be flown above Bahia and Tabernilla.

THE LIBERTY

NEW MACHINE

For the Butler Vets Has Arrived

The Butler Vets new machine (which promises to beat the world). In person these means confidentially arrived in Lowell yesterday from the far west and was hauled to the apartments of the Butlers in Fletcher street. It is fair to behold and looks awfully good to Jim Walker and a few more experts who got a look at it upon its arrival. It is called the "Liberty" and is equipped by a Goddess of Liberty. A special meeting of the Butlers has been called for next Sunday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting the new machine and to arrange plans for a formal christening. It will give the members a good opportunity to look the tub over and hear its fine points explained and a large meeting is expected.

POLITICS BOOM

Dracut Caucuses Will be Held Next Week

Politics in Dracut are beginning to boom as the caucuses are near at hand. The democrats will caucus on Feb. 15th at the house at the Navy Yard, while the following evening the republicans will hold forth at the Grange hall in Dracut Centre.

Up to date there has been but one addition to the list of candidates already published in "The Sun". Percy Smith of Dracut Centre is the new candidate and he is out for selection on the republican ticket, making the fourth candidate of the republicans for the three positions, the democrats having six candidates.

There is considerable interest in the Dracut election among Lowell people, because of the fact that two of the candidates are well known in Lowell.

John E. Burke, who is looked upon as one of the strongest democratic candidates and who has previously distinguished himself before his townsmen as a clever moderator, is a popular employee of George Fairburn's, the blacksmith. Square market and it stands as well in Dracut as he does in the Square, there'll be nothing to it.

The other man in whom Lowell is interested is "Pluggin'" Pat Keegan of bicycle fame. Mr. Keegan is a full-fledged resident of Dracut, having purchased the property cottage in Mammoth road three years ago. Mr. Keegan has taken an active interest in town affairs since becoming a resident and will show some class as a candidate for office.

MARRIED 70 YEARS

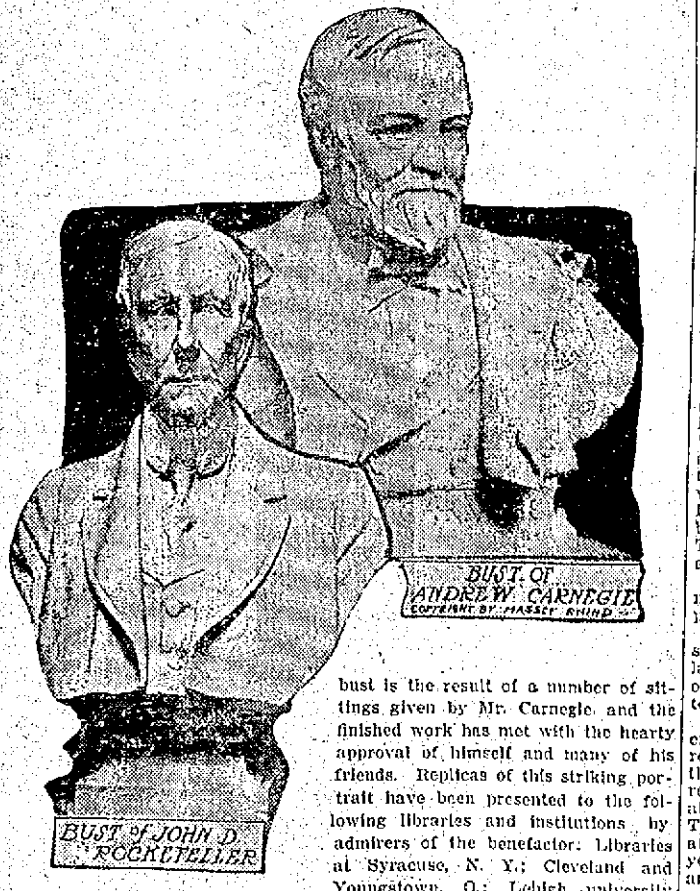

TRURO, N. S., Feb. 11.—Various persons high in Canada's official life sent messages of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. William Dunlap of Middle Stevedock yesterday on the 70th anniversary of the venerable couple's marriage. Ex- and Countess Grey, who also noticed the anniversary last year, and Premier Laurier were among those signing messages of congratulation yesterday. The old people are in excellent health.

OWEN MORAN WAITING FOR NEXT CHANCE WITH WOLGAST

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Since Knock-out Brown administered that fine hiding to Ad Wolgast in Philadelphia, and came near putting over a sleep producer on the champion, Owen Moran has not slept a wink. The little Kansas man fears that some one will come along and prevent him from getting the next crack at the title holder. Moran says that Wolgast would be very easy for him and hopes that some kind promoter will come along and sign them up at once. Owen is willing to let the champion name the terms to suit himself. Wolgast has promised Moran that he will give him the next chance at the title, and it is more than likely that the pair will be matched to meet the latter part of March.

NEW BRONZE BUSTS OF MEN WHO HAVE GIVEN AWAY FORTUNES

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The two men of modern times who have been most lavish in giving money for philanthropic purposes have had life-size bronze busts made of them recently by well known sculptors. The reproduction of a bronze bust of Andrew Carnegie, representing him in his robes as lord rector of St. Andrew's university, Scotland, the first American who ever held that honored position, was modeled by J. Massey Rhind, the well known sculptor of New York. This

OFFICIALS RESIGN

SOMETHING DOING POLITICALLY IN CARLISLE

There would appear to be something doing politically in Carlisle, for W. C. Nickles has resigned as a selectman, W. C. Hadley has resigned as auditor, and F. H. Billington has resigned from the school board. There is also a vacancy on the board of overseers. B. F. Blaisdell has served during the year by appointment of the selectmen. H. T. Chamberlain has been appointed auditor.

The town farm has paid its running expenses and more. The appropriation is untouched.

The town has received $1205.73, state school money, $135 more than last year. This is interesting because of the report that the town was not to receive any this year.

The school committee reports an unexpended balance of $16.22, which it recommends be used toward cancelling the school house bond of $500. It also recommends that $1700 be appropriated this year instead of $2165 as last. This will make $900 less to be assessed after the annual meeting than last year, and will obviate the necessity of another "April 1st" meeting. It also recommends a small appropriation for new equipment.

DRAFT OF BILL FOR SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE COMPLETED

LISBON, Feb. 11.—The draft of the bill for the separation of church and state has been completed. It guarantees liberty of conscience, education and propaganda subject to simple control. The churches will be placed at the disposal of the clergy, the only stipulation being that the clergy must show they are able to keep them up.

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST HAVE SNOW CLEARED FROM PREMISES

"Snow, snow, beautiful snow," etc., is all very well to either write or read about, but when it comes to the job of clearing the snow from the sidewalk it is another matter and a task which the average man is not anxious to tackle, but there is a law which compels persons to clear the snow from in front of their property and if the work is not done they are liable to arrest.

During the past few days the police department has been busy notifying tenants and owners of property to comply with the city ordinance and in several instances notices have been sent to Boston and other cities where property owners in this city reside.

The law is specific and reads as follows: "The tenant, occupant, and in case there shall be no tenant, the owner, agent, or the person having the care of any building or lot of land bordering on any street, lane, court, square, or public place within the city, where there is any foot-way or sidewalk, shall cause all the snow and ice to be removed from such sidewalk."

"If the snow shall fall in the day time, it shall be removed from the sidewalk within four hours from the time it shall have ceased falling; if in the night time, it shall be removed by twelve o'clock at noon of the day succeeding; and all ice shall be removed within twenty-four hours after the same shall form upon the sidewalk."

"And this section shall apply to snow or ice which may have fallen from any building, and to ice formed from water running or accumulating upon any sidewalk."—Gen. Ord. 27, Sec. 11.

THE PUBLIC HALL

Discussed by Appropriations Committee and Commission

Different Sites for the Proposed Building Were Talked Over—Final Figures Showing Amounts Allotted to Different Municipal Departments

At a meeting of the appropriations committee and members of the public hall commission held last night the commission gave its reasons for selecting the Old Washington tavern site, and Alderman Gallagher, chairman of the committee on appropriations, suggested that the people be given a chance to vote on the question of providing that the present city government, as a whole, would not agree with the commission's selection of a site. On motion of Councilman Chapman it was voted that the commission be requested to ascertain the price for which the Old Washington tavern site can be purchased and report to the appropriations committee.

Chairman Gallagher called to order at 8:35 and read the report of the public hall commission recommending the Old Washington tavern site for a public hall. The assessed valuation of the property is $61,900 and it comprises about 21,000 square feet of land.

Major Charles S. Proctor read a letter sent to the city council April 6, 1908, in which it was stated that eight meetings had been held and that the Old Washington tavern site would best serve the people. "The commission has no hand in the adjustment of the amount to be paid. That will be wholly in the hands of the city solicitor," said Mr. Proctor.

"This commission," continued Mr. Proctor, "has acted under four mayors and no mayor, who has been chairman ex-officio of the commission, has been opposed to this site. At no time has more than one man been opposed to this site. The present commission unanimously favors this site."

Mr. Flanagan asked Mr. Proctor how many sites had been looked over, and Mr. Proctor said that at the junction of John and Paige streets, the Coburn lot, the lot where the York club stands, the so-called White property in Bridge street, and a lot in Tremont street had been considered, besides the Washington tavern site.

"The Coburn lot is too small," he said, "in our opinion. The property in Moody street, near the York club, is too noisy, and it has some strings tied to it, through a connection with Locks and Canals property. The lot in Paige street, occupied by the Methodist and Baptist churches, costs more than the Washington tavern site. The White property was located in a noisy section and one where there is much congestion. The lot in Tremont street did not commend itself to us."

"A great many people want a hall, but don't care where it is placed," said Chairman Gallagher. "Being near the old lot for a time, I was in a position to hear much criticism. The fact remains that previous governments have not agreed with this commission."

"We don't know how the present government as a whole will feel upon this matter. But supposing this government should not favor the lot, isn't there some means whereby we can get an honest expression from the people to determine what site should be selected? A ballot of some kind should be arranged. Stations might be located in firehouses or other places in the city so that voters might be given a chance to express a preference."

"It ought to be our guiding motive to get the people, the hall they want and to put it where the majority wants it," said Mr. Proctor.

Major Proctor said that all of the regular paraphernalia for balloting would have to be used.

Mr. Hurd said the only safe way would be to submit it to the voters at a regular election.

BOARD OF TRADE COAL OPERATORS

Says Anti-Combination Laws Injure the Small Dealers

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Anti-combination laws, which prevent the coal operators of Illinois and Indiana from uniting to raise prices, were declared at a convention of the operators here yesterday to be the ruin of the industry and driving the small operator into bankruptcy.

Many coal mines in Illinois and Indiana are closed down and working half time, and coal is said to be selling below actual cost of production. The demand is light and the trade is demoralized, according to the operators who are meeting to devise ways and means of improving the situation.

Walter Bogle presided at the meeting, and a committee of 18 operators from Illinois and eight from Indiana were appointed to prepare an amendment to the anti-trust law so as to allow the operators to combine to maintain steady and uniform prices.

"The present law against combinations operates to cause the very conditions it was intended to prevent, said Mr. Bogle.

"We do not wish to form a combination in restraint of trade," he continued, "but, under existing conditions, small operators are being forced to sell, the smaller properties are being merged and the big companies get all the business. Instead of the laws preventing the industry from falling into the hands of a few it actually is forcing that condition."

The citizens of Westford at a recent meeting held in the town hall, formed an organization to be known as the board of trade of Westford, and adopted by-laws to govern said association, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Edward Fisher; vice-president, E. Henry Harrington; secretary, L. W. Wheeler.

The first meeting of the board of directors will be held Monday evening at the town hall of Westford.

The following is the constitution in part adopted by the new board of trade:

Article 1. This association shall be known as the Westford board of trade.

Article 2. It shall have for its objects the advancement of the public interests of the town of Westford; the development of all legitimate enterprises, tending to increase its prosperity; the uniting of the energies and influence of its citizens upon all subjects affecting the welfare of the town; the improvement of facilities for transportation; the diffusion of information concerning the manufactures, trade and business of the town; and the cultivation of friendly relations among the citizens of Westford and vicinity.

Article 3. Any person may become a member of the association, whose application shall be approved by the board of directors, and who shall receive the votes of a majority of the members present and voting at any regular meeting of the association, sign the constitution and by-laws and pay the prescribed fee.

The officers of the association shall consist of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and collector, and board of directors. The president and vice-president shall be members ex-officio, of the board of directors. The officers shall be chosen by ballot at the annual meeting on the first Wednesday in January of each year, and shall hold the office until their successors are chosen, to whom they shall render all books, papers, money and other property in their possession, belonging to the association.

Article 4. There shall be the following standing committees, of three members each, appointed by the board of directors: First, town affairs and real estate development; second, transportation; third, manufactures and mercantile affairs; fourth, statistics and information; fifth, public buildings, parks, sidewalks, street lighting, water supply, and sewerage; sixth, athletics; seventh, collection and preservation of local historical and photographic material; eighth, entertainments and practical talks.

Article 10. The board of directors shall have control of the property of the association, make all rules and exercise a general supervision of its interests and affairs and perform all the duties and have the powers of the association, not specifically delegated to other officers. They shall examine and audit all bills and the books and papers of the secretary, treasurer and collector, and report the same at the annual meeting.

They shall also report all delinquents as reported to them by the collector, with recommendations for action on the case. Three members shall constitute a quorum at a meeting of the board of directors.

Article 11. There shall be an annual meeting of the association on the first Wednesday in January, and regular meetings quarterly thereafter. The secretary shall give five days' notice of all meetings, by mailing the same postpaid, addressed to each member at his residence as appears upon the records of the association.

Article 12. Every person becoming a member of the association shall pay a membership fee of 50 cents, and an annual fee thereafter of 50 cents.

PRAYER MEETINGS

To be Held in Local Saloons Tonight

Edwin A. Corbett, Jr., an evangelist from Providence, R. I., and Miss Margaret L. Conrad, a noted singer of gospel hymns, will hold prayer meetings in some of the local saloons this evening.

Mr. Corbett called at Mayor Meahan's office this forenoon to ask his approval and financial support. The mayor contributed without a murmur, and told Mr. Corbett that he had the mayor's consent to go where he pleased. Mr. Corbett had already obtained the consent of the police board and superintendent of police.

"Do you take up a collection at these saloon meetings?" asked Mayor Meahan.

"No, we refuse to accept money at the meetings. We do this because we know the prayer meeting is a religious movement. If money is collected, especially in the saloons, our movement is non-sectarian and non-denominational. It is a special religious work that we are taking up and I feel that we are doing a lot of good."

"But how do you manage to exist?" asked the mayor.

"By appealing to such men as yourself, men whom we think would be interested in the uplift movement in all its branches."

"I am certainly in favor of anything along that line," said the mayor, as he dug down in his jeans for a strip of the long green.

WORCESTER MAN

MADE ATTEMPT TO SHUT OFF HIS WIND

WORCESTER, Feb. 11.—"I want to commit suicide because they won't let me be a sufferer," shouted James Powers from a cell in police headquarters yesterday. After he had been locked up on a charge of stealing a dress of his sister to get money for the purchase of liquor.

His cry brought the station attendant to the police surgeon, the police and they found Powers with a cardigan jacket and his vest tied around his neck and he was tugging at the ends in an effort to shut off his wind.

He was in no danger because he could not tie the knot tightly enough to do himself any harm, but he insisted that he suffer from the wind and something to quiet his nerves or he would make away with himself. The doctor mixed up a dose of salts to take his mind off the suicide and he was relieved of all clothing that would enable him to hang himself.

SENT TO TOMBS

Woman Smuggler Is Given Sentence

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—As a warning to women who have no qualms against smuggling, Judge Martin, in the criminal branch of the U. S. district court yesterday, sentenced Maria C. Hill to the Tombs from last night until 5 o'clock Monday morning and fined her $2000.

The fine was paid and Mrs. Hill was led away sobbing hysterically. She is the daughter of Morris Menkes, a Brooklyn horseman, and the divorced wife of Capt. James Hill of the British army.

Counsel for Mrs. Hill made a strong plea for the court's mercy, but Judge Martin said that he felt that a jail sentence was warranted.

BENNETT.—The funeral services of Miss Mary Bennett were held at her residence in Fyngsboro Thursday. The moral tributes to her and her friends were many and eloquently expressive and their arrangement left nothing to be desired. Burial was at the graveyard near her birthplace.

The bearers were A. A. Flint, Louis Curtis, Otis Wright and Andrew Hadley. Undertaker M. Young of Lowell was in charge of the funeral.

The services at the house where the body lay, with masses of flowers banded around the casket, were simple and impressive. E. E. Adams of Lowell sang very fittingly two beautiful solos, one of which, "Morning Land," was his own favorite selection. The reading of the scriptures and the brief address and prayer were given by her pastor, Rev. Napoleon S. Hoagland. In the course of his address he read a poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, entitled "Beyond." He also read some of her favorite selections from Whittier's poems and hymns.

If United States senators were elected by the people they would not be so recreant to their duty as did the democrats mentioned. Furthermore if many of the representatives had not been defeated at the polls, they would not be so ready to support a measure of this kind that pays many millions of money to be handed over as a free gift to shipping companies.

They have appealed in vain for a reduction, the express companies being so strong that they can afford to turn a deaf ear to such appeals. It is plain, therefore, that the Boston Elevated company stands against the interests of the entire state, and that the legislature should interfere to prevent the Boston & Northern company the privilege of entering Boston in spite of all opposition. The people of the state want the trolley express, and the question comes as to whether their interests or those of the elevated railway in Boston will prevail. The Boston Elevated is running

Injected Into Discussion Over Election of U. S. Senators

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The injection yesterday by Senator Root and Senator Bacon of Georgia of the race question into the hitherto comparatively commonplace discussion in the senate of the resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote, lifted that controversy to an almost sensational plane.

In a long speech by Senator Root in opposition to the Borah resolution he said that the national government could not afford to barter away the privilege of supervising senatorial elections in the south if need should arise for such supervision.

Also in speaking of the observance of the 14th and 15th amendments to the constitution he said that from time to time "things happen" in the Southern states which should not be permitted by the states and which should be corrected, if not by the states themselves then by the national government. Later he took occasion to emphasize this statement.

When first made the declaration caused a visible stir on the democratic side of the chamber, and feeling was intensified by the resolution, it at once became manifest that if anything was lacking to insure opposition by the southern senators to the resolution it had been supplied by Mr. Root.

Senator Borah, who had charge of the measure, said that the race question had been dragged into the case for the purpose of alienating the minority.

When Mr. Root finished his speech he left the chamber. Mr. Bacon immediately expressed a desire for specifications regarding the things which the New York senator had said "happen in the south," which ought to call for federal intervention, but the demand did not reach Mr. Root until after Senator Beveridge had made a formal reply to the New York senator's speech and the senate was prepared to adjourn. Just before a o'clock Mr. Bacon revived the southern question. Repeating the remarks of the New Yorker, Mr. Bacon addressed himself directly to Mr. Root, and asked:

"What are the things to which the senator refers?"

Mr. Root's response was in no wise evasive or indirect. Recalling the substance of his previous remarks, he said that he had reference to the voluntary surrender by the government of the power to enforce the protection of the suffrage privileges of the southern negroes. Facing Senator Bacon's question with great deliberation, Mr. Root enumerated peonage, lynching and disfranchisement, such as "the grandfather clause" in the constitutions of many of the southern states, as things calculated to "deprive the black man of that equal protection which every man which the constitution guarantees."

"The people of the United States are willing to fold their hands and wish the southern people God-speed in working out their delicate problem so long as they do so in kindness, but if there should be such oppression as to call for the exercise of the power of the United States to enforce the amendments that power will be exercised, and it ought to be," he said.

Mr. Bacon said that such questions as lynching and peonage were in no wise cognate to the subject under consideration. He accounted for lynching on the ground of severe provocation, which he said deprived men of their reason and made demons of them. He found one cause for them in the sparsity of population and to show that this crime is confined to no one part of the country said there was a lynching in New York in which the victim was burned to death. As for the charge of peonage, he said there was no practice in the south worthy of that name.

Indicating doubt as to Mr. Root having had such offenses in mind, Mr. Bacon said he was sure the New York senator was really inveighing against supposed offences against the franchise.

"Am I correct?" questioned Mr. Bacon.

"Perfectly," responded Mr. Root. Then he added: "If the constitution should be so amended as to provide for the election of senators by direct vote the national government must retain the power to make these elections free and unhampered. Without this privilege the government of the United States surrenders the power of its own preservation."

"Does the senator contend for the power of congress to annul laws now on the statute books, such as the 'grandfather clause'?" asked Mr. Bacon.

"Without the slightest doubt," said the New Yorker.

"Well," returned the Georgian, "the senator has certainly put us on notice."

"I meant to put you and also the country on notice," replied Mr. Root, speaking with force.

Replying at some length, Mr. Bacon said that to change the manner of electing senators without giving the states control was a grave risk. Speaking of the past experiences of the south, he said:

"If the southern people had not contended heroically against conditions which confronted them civilization would have been destroyed in the south and it would have been but a short time before it would have been destroyed in the entire nation."

After a few remarks by Senator Fletcher of Florida regarding the so-called peonage system of the south, the incident closed for the day with Senator Borah's declaration that every body knew perfectly why the question of lynchings and peonage had been brought into the controversy.

EDITOR ELVERSON

PROPRIETOR OF THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER IS DEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—James Elverson, Sr., proprietor and editor of Philadelphia Inquirer died at his home here last night, aged 73 years. He had been ill several weeks.

Mr. Elverson purchased the controlling interest in the Inquirer in 1887. Among his earlier ventures in the publishing field were the Saturday Night, a story paper which he established in 1865, and Golden Days, a well known juvenile publication which he started in 1880.

Born in England, he came to this country in 1847. He was a telegraph operator at the age of 15. At the outbreak of the Civil war he went to Washington as the manager of the American Telegraph company and personally handled much of the important business of the departments. He was in close touch with the Lincoln administration and was of intimate terms with the president and members of the cabinet. He was delegate at large to the national republican conventions of 1900, 1904 and 1908.

Mr. Elverson is survived by a widow and two children.

DIED ON TRAIN

MOTHER OF JAMES BOYS WAS STRICKEN SUDDENLY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Zerelda Samuel, 86 years old, mother of Frank and Jesse James, the former bandits, died yesterday afternoon on a St. Louis & San Francisco railway train 15 miles north of here. She was on the way to Kansas City from the home of her son, Frank, who lives on a farm near Picher, Okla.

Mrs. Zerelda Samuel was one of the prominent figures of western Missouri during the latter part of the Civil war. She was born in 1824, and in 1841 married the Rev. Robert James, a Baptist minister. A short time later they moved to Clay county, Missouri.

The Rev. Mr. James went to California during the gold rush and died there. In 1885 his widow married Dr. Reuben Samuel.

During the war what was known as the "home guard" visited the home and family of Dr. Samuel. He caused him to become insane. A few years later private detectives endeavored to capture or kill Jesse James, threw a bomb into the house of Mrs. Samuel, causing the loss of one of her arms.

Mrs. Samuel took advantage of the notoriety of the old homestead and charged visitors 25 cents each to inspect the place. From this she received a comfortable income.

Three Other Children So Badly Frozen That it Was Necessary to Amputate Their Hands—Little Ones Were Left at Home Alone and the House Caught Fire

HOULTON, Me., Feb. 11.—Two children are dead and three were so badly frozen that it was necessary to amputate all their hands, as a result of a fire at East Littleton which turned the five little ones out into the snow while their parents were absent from home on business. The three survivors are in a serious condition but it was hoped their lives have been saved by the amputations.

They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lyons. The oldest is 7 years old, two were twins aged 4 years, and the other two were twins, 2 years old.

Mr. Lyons was working in the woods and Mrs. Lyons was obliged to go to a neighbor's house for some supplies, leaving the children alone in the house. In the interval the house caught fire yet the older child succeeded in getting the younger children out of the burning house. The little ones sat in the snow, curled up, trying to keep warm until help arrived. The older twins crawled through the snow to a neighbor's house while the oldest child went to give the alarm, but not finding anyone at home, they went into a shed and crawling into a pump tried to get under cover. When neighbors finally arrived on the scene the children were badly frozen. The house was totally destroyed.

THE UNIONISTS
UNABLE TO AGREE ON A LINE OF ACTION

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Apparently the unionist leaders in parliament have been unable to agree on lines of action in opposition to the government's policy. On the eve of the meeting of parliament, it was hinted that Lord Lansdowne, the leader of the opposition in the house of lords, was ready to introduce a bill for the reform of the upper house, but yesterday the Times said that the unionist leaders had decided it would be undesirable to introduce such a bill. Both these statements lack confirmation in responsible unionist quarters.

Lord Curzon of Kedleston in a speech here last night deprecated the presentation of a strife provoking vote bill at a moment when preparations for the coronation were being made, and urged the importance of both parties seeking to arrive at a permanent settlement of the problem—not a solution of it that the opposite party would endeavor to repeat. He openly referred to the imminence of the reform of the house of lords and suggested lines on which such action should be carried out.

FIVE INDICTED

In Connection With Paving Contracts

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 11.—Facing prison terms with no alternative of a fine if convicted of fraud upon the city in connection with city paving contracts and other public works, five prominent men of this city were indicted yesterday. Those indicted are: John H. Sundmaker, public service director; H. F. Chipley, city engineer; August J. Henkel, paving contractor, member of the firm of A. J. Henkel & Brother; Conrad Henkel, member of the same firm; and W. W. Coney, president of the Moore-Coney company, contractors and dealers in cement.

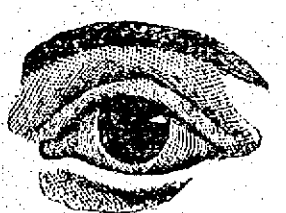

The indictments constitute the second report made this week by the grand jury in its probe of alleged public corruption. The first report filed was made Wednesday, when six true bills were returned against Jacob Basch, political leader and deputy collector of the Alien liquor tax. Basch is charged with having solicited bribes from saloon keepers in his administration of saloon license collection.

NEGATIVE SIDE

WON DEBATE BEFORE FREDERIC T. GREENHALGE SOCIETY

The Frederic T. Greenhalge Debating society held its regular weekly meeting yesterday, and the affair brought forth a spirited argument. There were fully 50 students in attendance and the enthusiasm was intense. The subject for debate was a popular one. "Resolved, that a well equipped gymnasium would be of more benefit to the students of the Lowell high school than the system of military drill now in vogue."

The judges, Messrs. Shaw, Sherbourne and Brennan, after a lengthy deliberation, reached a decision that, although the arguments on each side were evenly matched, the delivery of the negative team, Messrs. Liddell and Howard, gave them the decision over the affirmative.

PANAMA CANAL

The Fortification of It Discussed

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—To fortify or not to fortify was the bone of an after-dinner discussion of the Panama canal at the Economic club's banquet at the Hotel Astor last night. "Fortify," said the veteran fighter, Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired; "don't," cautioned an eminent authority on law, Prof. Henry Wade Rogers, dean of the Yale law school.

The disagreement between the speakers was a friendly one and was shared by others who addressed the meeting. Dr. Louis Livingston Menon, Henry Reuterbach, the marine artist and naval authority; Congressman J. Warren Keffer of Ohio; Henry Clews and George Henry Putnam.

Count Apponyi, the Hungarian statesman who has come to America to discuss peace problems, dropped in for a moment. He would not commit himself as to the canal, but said his visit to America was not made with a feeling that it was necessary to urge a movement for universal peace, for America was already looked up to by the nations of Europe as the leader in the movement.

"Every military man must know," said Gen. Miles, "that in the case of war, the Isthmian canal would be, if possible, the first place to be seized by a foreign foe and any student of history must know that treaties are disregarded in almost every war. Even now in times of peace, our people advocated disregarding the treaty we have made with one foreign government and making a treaty with all nations to neutralize the canal which one and all could violate when it was to their interest to do so. Already we see indications in some quarters of a disposition to form a compact to prevent our protecting or holding the canal."

Mr. Reuterbach said: "We ought to close up the useless navy yards that are being used for the convenience of the constituents of the congressmen of the state where they are maintained, and construct an adequate base of supplies for the Panama canal. The next war will be in the Caribbean sea and we are inviting a disaster by not fortifying the canal. It cost $600,000 to build and $100 worth of nitro-glycerine, properly placed in time of war, would disable the canal for any practical purpose."

LORIMER'S FATE

DEPENDS LARGELY ON POSITION OF SENATOR CULLOM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Whether the senate permits Senator Lorimer of Illinois to retain his seat, depends largely upon the attitude of his colleague, Senator Cullom, when the case comes up for a vote. This was made clear yesterday when two senators who had not determined their own course in the case, endeavored to learn how the senior Illinois senator intended to vote. If these senators succeeded in learning Senator Cullom's views, they were the first to get any expression from him.

Notwithstanding Mr. Cullom's silence a report was current on the floor of the senate yesterday that he intended to vote that the election of Mr. Lorimer was corrupt. Mr. Cullom said that he did not authorize such a statement but he would not dignify it with a denial.

for the Washington's Birthday Dinner

Favors for Luncheons, Dinners And Cotillions

FOR the luncheons, dinners and cotillions planned for Feb. 22, which comes this year in mid-week, hosts of appropriate favors are ready, and naturally red, white and blue are the colors used.

The cherry, as every one knows, is the symbol of the Father of His Country, and the feast celebrating his birthday, if it be dinner or luncheon, should begin with grapefruit generously dressed with maraschino cherries or with that particular liquid appetizer which boasts the cherry as its characteristic garnishment. The birthday party occurring on Washington's day will naturally have a cake elaborately trimmed with preserved cherries or the richly red artificial cherries which may be obtained together with glossy green leaves.

Some new and attractive Washington birthday favors are pictured. The three iceboxes and baskets are especially dainty. One of these is a pretty basket made of braided crepe paper trimmed with artificial cherries and leaves and a bow of red, white and blue ribbon on the tall handle. Another is a cherry tree section, also made of crepe paper, and the third case is a fancy box which might easily be imitated at home. Three triangular pieces of cardboard are covered with crepe paper, one triangle white, the others red and blue. The three are pasted to a fourth triangle which forms the bottom of the box, and the tops of the triangle are bent down as the photograph indicates.

Patriotic candlesticks are in the form of cherry tree stumps and Uncle Sam hats, openings being provided at the top for the tall candles. Miss Columbia on a liberty pillar draped with red, white and blue crepe paper makes a pretty place favor. Columbia of course being represented by a china doll's head glued to the top of the tall beehive box.

Cotillion favors for the patriotic day, or, rather, evening, are to be seen in another cut. These include small hatchets tied with ribbons, small fans with shield tops having oval pictures of the Father of His Country and pretty flag fans which may be opened and closed.

The Sunday Night Spread

IN many homes the Sunday night supper is the time when the young daughter of the house entertains a few of her girl friends, or perhaps if mother is lenient a couple of the boys may be invited to the spread. Here are a few recipes that are not too difficult for the novice to attempt when she plays hostess.

Dreams.—The very name appeals at once to the young people. Take in proportion three-quarters of a cupful of shaved rich yellow cheese, one tablespoonful of cream, a saltspoonful of mustard, a few grains of cayenne and rounds of bread lightly toasted on one side. Mash the cheese smooth and soften with cream, adding more if required to make it creamy enough to spread on the rounds of bread. Add seasoning and place two rounds together and place in the blazer of your chafing dish with just enough butter to saute them nicely without burning. These may be prepared beforehand and neatly piled on a dish ready for sauteing.

Turkey Minced With Green Peas.—If you have had turkey or chicken for dinner a dainty hot supper dish can be prepared as follows: Take two cupfuls of the meat, chopped rather fine. Make a rich cream sauce with two cupfuls of milk and three tablespoonfuls of flour and three tablespoonfuls of butter.

Season the meat to taste with salt and pepper. Add a tablespoonful of minced parsley and the turkey. Let simmer for ten minutes. Then serve on rounds of toast. The toast may be omitted, and thin slices of buttered bread or olive and lettuce sandwiches may be served.

Shrimp Woggle.—Melt two level teaspoonfuls of butter in a chafing dish or saucepan. Stir in the same amount of flour and when smooth add one and a half cupfuls of rich milk. Stir until it cooks to a creamy state. Then add a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, two more tablespoonfuls of butter, a can of shrimps washed and drained and tossed a few minutes in a little butter, a few drops of onion juice, a can of tender green peas and salt and pepper to taste. Last of all, add a dash of paprika.

Welsh Rabbit.—Most young people would consider the list incomplete without the addition of a rabbit. To a pound of American cheese allow a cupful of cream or rich milk with as much cream as you can spare, two eggs, two level tablespoonfuls of butter and salt and paprika to taste. Shave or crumble the cheese and put all together in the chafing dish with the hot water pan underneath. Then light the lamp and as soon as the water begins to heat begin to stir the mixture. Stir and cook to a thick smooth cream, turn out the flame at once and serve.

Costumes For Fancy Dress Party

THERE is no apparent reason for it, but it so happens that every season about this time there is a revival of fancy dress parties. Especially in the fall and early winter hostesses are too occupied in introducing the buds of the season and in launching their social campaigns to give heed to anything so distinctly frivolous as a fancy dress party, but every woman has in her makeup the childish love of "dressing up," and the fancy party gives her a fine chance to let her fancy soar.

The frocks pictured are most attractive and at the same time easy to make. For the presentation of springtime all that is necessary is a pretty girl—not such a difficult item—yards of white cotton voile or fine cheesecloth for the

MUSINGS OF ELINOR WITTE

WHY FRIENDS DISAPPOINT US.

"I am so disappointed in such and such a person," is a complaint we are constantly hearing.

"Why are you?" I sometimes ask in response to the plaintive remark of my friend.

"Oh, because I thought she was this or that and she proves to be neither!" comes the aggrieved reply.

Then the disappointment is your fault, not hers. She couldn't help your expecting these things from her. She probably didn't even realize that you did so. The trouble is you have endowed her with qualities which she does not possess, and now you are disappointed that she has turned out differently. It was merely the fault of your poor judgment.

Don't you agree with me, now that you have come to think seriously about it?

Just because we are fascinated by a person we are apt to jump to the conclusion that she possesses all the virtues we should like her to have. We love to think: "She is perfect. I can give her my whole affection."

After awhile it happens that you find she has faults very similar to your own, and down she comes from the pedestal. The illusion is over. Another "I'd" shattered. But it isn't the "I'd's" fault. It is pure indeed to find a person in whom all the virtues and graces are combined, and I doubt if we would feel very comfortable in the society of such a paragon. For instance, the snub nose, faithful little creature who will go through fire and water for some one she is fond of will probably not have the attractions of the girl blessed with perfect features who never considers anybody but herself. So you must make up your mind to Grecian perfection and selfishness or irregular features and the reverse. You won't find the virtues that go with one kind of nose possessed by persons who have an entirely different sort.

The gay, amusing friend who invariably meets you with a bright smile and merry jest does not always possess the same depth of feeling as her more serious sister, and the agreeable man who charms with his small talk, though a decided addition to an evening party, may not be as reliable as the man whose conversation is apt to be somewhat heavy and who behaves awkwardly when he is making a call.

No one is all black or entirely white. The prevailing tint is gray. I may prefer one kind of grayness in my friend, you another. The best thing is to love our friends while recognizing the faults which, being human, they are bound to have, for that love is the only kind that endures and outlives everything.

News About The New Veils

No more freakish decorations on veils—such is the verdict of the spring fashions on "beautifiers." A successful oculist said recently that he had built his home on veils, and the hideous and optic destroying varieties we have been wearing lately would build for him a good big house in fees from their silly wearers. But never again! The meshes to be worn in the spring are the cobweb effects, so fine that the hair is kept in place, the general neatness of the appearance improved, yet the features are plainly visible through the veils.

Russian nets will be popular—those with simply a woven dot of the silk thread. The intensity of the color at the regular intervals gives the effect of chenille dots.

Fashion Jottings

Marquessette, cotton voile and loose meshed materials are going to be smart for spring and summer dresses.

Among the new cloth for gownmaking is a chenille fabric which resembles woolen crepe of a soft texture. Large patches of flat embroidery will trim these frocks.

More suitable and altogether more tailored looking are the new turnover collars of white bengaline silk to be seen on the spring suits.

Embroidery in porcelain beads is to be used on lingerie gowns both for grownups and for children.

Gold and silver lace when used for yokes in the new frocks will be veiled with chiffon or mousseline de soie.

Here are the color combinations of the spring in millinery and frocks. Blue and lavender, yellow combined with green and a touch of cerise is suggested on both gowns and hats.

Household Hints

SOMETIMES the gas will burn unevenly—very low at one side and with a long, thin stream at the other. If the burner is examined when the gas is turned off particles of dust or other foreign matter will be found in it. Run a bit of cardboard through the tip and the gas will burn more evenly.

Eggshells powdered fine make an excellent substitute for washing powder when laundering lace and fine neckwear. The eggshells must be absolutely clean and thoroughly dried, without the least suspicion of scorching, and should be pounded or rolled into fine powder in a mortar or with a rolling pin. Loosely fill a small lawn or cheesecloth bag with the fine powder, and when washing laces, fine neckwear or baby linen lay the little bag in all the separate washing, boiling and rinsing waters. Things washed in this way come out beautifully clean and white.

When incandescent gas mantles break don't throw them away as useless. Break them up into powder and use it for cleaning jewelry. It gives a beautiful polish and does not scratch the gold.

After washing fine black stockings rinse them in water in which a little bluing has been added. This helps to preserve the color.

A florist says that the leaves of palms should be washed in milk and water, which will preserve them and prevent brown spots.

To renovate a fur rug rub in a liberal quantity of cornmeal, let it remain for several hours and then shake and brush out with a good stiff brush.

The Barnard School of Millinery

PROFESSOR of millinery! Rather a unique chair, is it not, in the academic world? But the "progressive" leaven, always at work in Barnard college, New York city, has recently established this aesthetic professorship.

There is no reason on earth why a girl who is working hard for her degree should be indifferent to her personal appearance, and surely nothing adds so much to that appearance as a smart, becoming hat. And," she continued, "we turn out just such creations the recent work of an advanced pupil. When I had pronounced the confection a "dear" and lavished upon it all the chapeau adjectives in my vocabulary she interrupted my flow of "soul" by pointing out that I had missed the technically good part of the confection—the perfectly faced brim with its tiny cord edging, which in its way was a masterpiece. And not the least interesting of the many wonderful things done in the millinery class is the making of frames from a willow fabric that is dampened and pulled and clipped into condition over the wire foundations. Indeed, the material is molded and shaped much as a sculptor models his clay.

To prove that the millinery course of instruction is a popular one at this college one has only to look into the pleasantly situated workroom of the class and observe the students at their tasks. There is an air of suppressed enthusiasm, an atmospheric feeling of everybody trying to do her best.

to our judgment, it is perfect as far as we can make it, and the most critical member of the class has pronounced a satisfactory verdict on the work." Each week there is a class criticism of the finished hats which is rather dreaded by the pupil whose handiwork is the target for the friendly glances of her sister workers.

Taking a special course under the expert guidance of Mrs. Tobey are college girls, society matrons, staid housewives and pupils from fashionable Fifth avenue finishing schools. The work starts in with the making of a real hat. Designs are first made in paper and then carried out in fabrics. The first hat made is a simple street model, and next comes the dressy confection.

No interview nowadays is complete unless the victim has been asked his or her viewpoint of the suffrage question, so before leaving the classroom I endeavored to learn Mrs. Tobey's mental status on the "votes for women" subject. The reply was, "I would advise women to study millinery and let the ballot go."

The Cherry Bridge Party

Why not have a cherry bridge party on the 22d of February? To make it a regular George Washington party the historic tree should be a prominent feature of the evening's entertainment. Bring it about in this way: Sew some old, white sheets together and on them paint in stencil dye a huge cherry tree. On the appointed night fasten the sheet from the picture molding so as to curtain off one end of the room. Manicured cherries made of red tissue paper are to be pasted back of six inch circles cut out of the sheets. There is to be a cherry for each maiden's face.

Upon the arrival of the guests the girls are to disappear behind the curtain, and each one is to place her face opposite a tissue paper covered opening. The pen of the party will then be given little hatchets and told to choose a cherry. They will each break through the paper and find a smiling face. As the cherries are broken the girls come from behind the curtain, each joins the man who has chosen her, and he presents her with a bunch of artificial cherries tied with red ribbon. This is a novel and amusing way of assigning partners for the bridge game.

GIVE AND TAKE.

"John always lets me have my own way, and we get along splendidly," a young bride wrote home to her people. But any one could, of course, get along "splendidly" under those conditions. What we have to learn to do is to get along peaceably even when we don't have things our own way. And to do this we must be prepared to give and take. Where two or three people live together small quarrels and bickerings are bound to arise, but at least we can do our best to avoid them as much as possible.

It always takes two to make a quarrel, and if we make up our minds that we won't be one of the guilty parties there will be less chance of a dispute arising.

here at the school of millinery." To verify this statement the vivacious little professor displayed with pardonable pride a stunning big black picture hat,

The ideal held up by Mrs. Tobey is a very high one. "We never," she said, "let go our efforts on even the most hopeless looking hat until, according

EXTRA

NATHAN D. PRATT

Boomed For Judge by the Lawyers of Lowell

If the influence of the lawyers of Lowell counts with Governor Foss, Nathan D. Pratt, senior member of the well known firm of Pratt and Devine, will receive the next appointment to the bench.

Since the first of the year Mr. Pratt's name has been prominently mentioned for one of the two vacancies on the bench, not only in Lowell but among the attorneys of the county, as Mr. Pratt is one of the most popular and most respected personally and professionally members of the Middlesex bar.

A petition was started in circulation yesterday among the lawyers of the city asking Governor Foss to consider the name of Mr. Pratt for the remaining position on the bench and every member of the bar approached signed the paper with evident enthusiasm while some went further and addressed personal communications to the chief executive. Mr. Pratt with characteristic modesty will not make any personal effort to get the position, but it is said that he will accept it if it is tendered him.

CONGRESSMAN AMES

Says Secretary Legare Will Accept the Postmastership

"I have recommended the appointment of Joseph A. Legare as postmaster for Lowell, and I have every reason to believe that he will accept. This is the statement made by Congressman Ames to a reporter for The Sun this afternoon.

It was generally supposed that the congressman was in Washington, but he put in an appearance in Lowell today and proceeded to attend to business in this city.

The Sun reporter reached him at the plant of the Helms Electric company in Lawrence street, and it was there that the congressman made the statement as above quoted.

"Hope springs eternal in the breast of the candidate for postmaster, and while word has been received to the effect that Joseph A. Legare is Congressman Ames' choice for postmaster and that Mr. Legare has accepted the proffered appointment, there is no let-up in the campaign by mail of the several other candidates for the office of the opinion that the appointment, if made, will not go by the senate. They argue in the first place that even if Congressman Ames has made the offer to Mr. Legare it is merely as a matter of courtesy and that the congressman would rather have Mr. Legare's services personally than to turn them over to Uncle Sam. In the second place they are inclined to the belief that Mr. Legare's appointment is the one appointment to which Senator Lodge might object and that in the event of an objection on his part the senate might not confirm the appointment, making it necessary for the congressman to make a second choice.

Report had it last evening that Assessor Albert Blazon, a close personal friend and prospective law partner of Mr. Legare had gone to Washington, while this morning another report was about to the effect that ex-Senator McKinley, a candidate for the position, had suddenly gone out of town, presumably to Washington.

CONSPIRACY CASE

Charge Against Lawrence Man

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—Another fraudulent bankruptcy case came before United States Commissioner Hayes today when Victor Kaufman and Abram Gainsberg of Boston and Louis Gainsberg of Lawrence were given a hearing on a charge of attempting to conceal assets in bankruptcy proceedings. Kaufman and Gainsberg were formerly engaged in the clothing business on Washington street, Boston, under the firm name of V. Kaufman & Co., and Gainsberg, said to be a brother of Gainsberg, formerly conducted a clothing store in Lawrence. Kaufman & Co. failed on Dec. 1 last with liabilities of $12,000 and assets of $700.

The evidence today consisted in tracing goods purchased by Kaufman & Co. to the Lawrence store of Gainsberg. Chas. H. Pett of the firm of Benoit, Pett Co., which purchased Gainsberg's stock recently, and their employees, identified clothing put in as exhibits as part of the stock purchased by them from Gainsberg.

The hearing was continued until next Friday, Feb. 17.

Just after adjournment Gainsberg was arrested for the alleged evasion of a hotel bill at Maynard.

CHELSEA, Feb. 11.—Escaping coal gas caused the death of Fred Tyler, a youth of 17, and so overcame Francisco Gladello and his wife, Annie, that both are expected to die by the physicians at the Frost hospital, where the couple were taken. When he did not return home this morning his mother became alarmed and started an investigation. Receiving no answer to her knocks on Gladello's door she forced her way into the house and found her son dead on a couch and Mr. and Mrs. Gladello unconscious on the floor.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 11.—At an early hour this morning the post office at Reed's Ferry was burglarized, the thieves getting away with stamps to the value of $100 and $200 and also securing a small sum of money. A large sum of money within the inner vault of the safe was not reached, as thieves were frightened away by the return to the village of a party of Odd Fellows, who had been on a fraternal visit to Wilton and who returned just before five o'clock. Nitro glycerine was used in blowing open the safe door. The railroad station was broken into, and "tools" obtained from there. The post office was located in the general store of Resenden & Lowell and the money undisturbed in the safe belonged to the firm.

I have entered my appearance in behalf of Miss Fifield and the will will be offered for probate in Cambridge on Thursday, Feb. 16. NEWS OF THE MILLS

The Tremont and Suffolk Has Made Great Progress

Comparatively few people not actually employed in the cotton mills have a comprehensive idea of the magnitude of that industry and in order to appreciate it one must at least be shown through one of those busy hives of industry, where thousands of toilers weave and spin.

Through the courtesy of Agent Connell of the Tremont & Suffolk mills, a reporter of The Sun was shown through the most important sections of that plant yesterday afternoon. The Tremont & Suffolk mills number 16 in all and to visit the whole of these one would need at least a whole day.

Dust and Dirt Eliminated
Besides being interested in the various machines, operating with more than human precision, the reporter was impressed with the cleanliness that prevailed in the different rooms and departments. The dust and dirt that floated through these rooms under former conditions are things of the past. Their elimination is due to the genius of man and instead of the dust and dirt remaining in the room to be taken into the lungs of the operatives, the whole is carried away by a sort of suction cleaner, a series of big pipes that carries it to a mammoth receptacle on the outside of the mill. The reporter noticed that all of the work rooms were clean, light and airy and that the operatives seemed happy.

All New Machinery
There was a time, and not many years ago, when the Tremont & Suffolk was loaded with old, rickety machinery but that day has passed and gone. Since Mr. Connell's time as agent over $1,000,000 worth of new machinery has been installed and looking down the long avenues of machinery in these big mills today one notes the easy pulsation of new and improved year ago, Rev. Fr. Nolan, O. M. I., then pastor of the parish, noticed the roof caving in. He immediately consulted Architect Henry L. Rourke, who made a thorough examination of the building, and discovered that the 16 white pine columns measuring 12x12, and 32 feet in length, were in dry rot and would have to be replaced by steel columns.

The work was begun in June and proved to be a very hard and dangerous task, as supports had to be put in from the basement to the roof of the church. The old wooden columns were replaced by steel columns. The plaster work to the base of the main roof had to be stripped off, and in so doing it was further discovered that the trusses supporting the roof of the clear story and the main trusses supporting the roof over the nave of the church, had rotted through, and had to be taken out and replaced by new ones. The lower roof, at the clear story was in such a bad condition that the slates had to be taken off, and the roof reboarded. A new copper roof was put on. The ribs on the old columns are to be used on the new, steel columns in place of using Keene cement which would cost considerably more.

The new plaster arches, capitals and cornices, and all decorations and plaster work will be put back to correspond with the old plaster work. A new feature of the church will be the electrical decorations, which will be carried out in a thorough manner, so as to illuminate all sections of the church.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Just 44 years ago a small boy of 12 joined a certain minstrel troupe. Within the next 10 years that boy had danced himself into the affections of the American public to a remarkable degree, until he was known from coast to coast as one of the greatest minstrels—the old time minstrels—that America has produced.

That boy was George Primrose, for 30 years in company with that other famous minstrel, West, at the head of

with his two "boys," Murphy and West, at 4, 7, 15 and 2.50 p. m. respectively. He has been engaged at the largest salary ever paid in America to a performer appearing at such low popular prices, and will present some of that style of dancing for which he is so celebrated, and which he alone, with the exception of the two pupils of his, who appear with him, can do. It is the most distinctive and remarkable variety of soft shoe dancing known and it has never been equaled by any of the famous minstrel's followers.

Indeed, the entire bill at the Merrimack Square theatre next week will be of the "blue ribbon" variety. Among the other feature acts are the Musical Buskirk and his company; Ertle Brothers, musical dancers; the Sisters Ransdell and William B. Ransdell in a European novelty, and Frederick Meek, the soloist.

An innovation will be real "daylight" pictures, 4000 feet of the newest moving picture films, exhibited with the house lights all on. This is the latest development in the science of motion photography and is accomplished by the use of direct current.

Leader Philip Lederman of the theatre orchestra, has composed a stirring march tune dedicated to the patrons of the theatre and entitled "The Blue Ribbon March," which will be a feature of the musical programs during the week. On Monday night the the Primrose and West Minstrels. Today he is a rich man in his own right, but the old call of the "boards" still appeals to him. He goes back to the stage again and again, and will always while he lives, he says. George Primrose comes to Lowell next week for the first time in several years to the Merrimack Square theatre, where he will appear daily.

"The Blood is The Life"

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgment are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, flukes and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

MABEL ESTELLE
Who Will Join the Hathaway Stock Company This Week.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Stage directors say that no comedy drama equals "Our New Minister," a play of New England life, by Denman Thompson, as to popularity with members of stock companies. That is because it contains so many characters that they like to enact. The leading lady has a scene, to quote that eminent critic William Winter, "Unexamined for tragic intensity in any contemporary melodrama."

The leading man is heroic, with valor that appeals to common sense as well as to romantic imagination. The bad man of the piece is no brute, but a famous intellectual study in cowardice whom the best character actors are fond of portraying.

The ex-convict Ransom, bent on vengeance and his gentle daughter, Nance Ransom, are regarded as the best idealization of such natures ever put on the stage.

Then there are the squire and the postmaster, admirable examples of New England farm life. And for lively comedy, there are two pairs of extra young folks, to say nothing of a New York bovery boy.

Darius Startle, town constable, is a pleasing feature and one of the most realistic suggestions of rural life, in fact the feature of the many excellent characters in this pleasing comedy. Denman Thompson, the author is more familiar to the Lowell theatre-going public as the writer of "The Old Homestead" which play has proven the public for the last twenty years.

"Our New Minister" has been called the most truthfully romantic of all American rural dramas, nothing in it is exaggerated or distorted for the sake of the theatre effect; and for that very reason its power to amuse audiences, as it is full of refined, wholesome fun, is beyond that of any other modern play.

Consequently the characters are so clearly defined and so effective, that naturally the actors enjoy them as well as the audiences do. That's why there are bound to be good performances of "Our New Minister" as presented by The Donald Meek stock company, with Severin DeDeyn, at this popular little playhouse next week. Daffy matters.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today an exceptional program is offered yesterday at Theatre Voyons and best of all it is an all exclusive show shown in a daylight theatre. The biograph subject "Heart Beats of Long Ago" tells a story full of interest and acted in the exclusive biograph way. The western picture "A Cowboy's Devotedness" tells a thrilling and most dramatic story and the comedy is very good. On Monday the feature will be "The Doctor" based on the well known book of the same name and a picture that cannot fail to French the hearts of all who see it. It tells a connected charming story of a physician's life that is natural and at the same time one that is appealing. A pleasing comedy appropriate to Valentine's day is also a feature.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

If you want to enjoy a good laugh attend the show at the Academy today. The Ten Louisiana Blossoms have a lively skit of plantation life in songs and dances. Piquo is a clever acrobatic pantomime and Leone and Dale entertain in a musical sketch called "A Lesson in Opera." There will be a sacred concert on Sunday and on Monday an entire change of program. GOVERNOR DIX

WILL NOT INTERFERE IN THE SENATORIAL FIGHT

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11.—With Gov. Dix, Charles F. Murphy, William F. Sheehan and other democratic leaders in New York, the handful of legislators who remained here last night expressed the hope that some way out of the senatorial dilemma might be reached there so as to put an end to the deadlock next week. Gov. Dix is expected to talk over the situation with Mayor Gaynor before his return, but there are no present indications that the governor intends to interfere in any way.

The deadlock apparently is as firm as ever. There was no quorum at yesterday's session.

DEFEATED COLUMBIA IN HOCKEY GAME

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Cornell drove another spike into the intercollegiate hockey championship by defeating Columbia 4 to 0 at the St. Nicholas rink last night. The Ithacans have but one game left on the schedule—Dartmouth at Boston, a week from tonight—and this, it won, will clinch the title for Cornell. If the Ithacans lost today and Harvard defeats Yale in the final game of the series on the 18th, the Crimson will tie with Cornell.

MORTALITY

FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEBRU-ARY 11, 1911

BOSTON, Feb. 11 Claiming to represent the farmers of New England and eastern New York, President S. S. Abbott and Secretary Hunter of the New England Producers association have mailed to every New England representative in the national house a letter protesting against the free entry into the United States of Canadian farm products. The letter declares that the line of profit in New England farm products is very narrow and that the New England farmer cannot compete with the more fertile soils to raise staple crops. Anything that tends to lower prices of our products without giving us any other benefit is not what we have to buy, says the letter, "tends directly to the sacrifice of New England rural prosperity with all that means as related to what is best and most characteristic in her life, associations and history. We ask that you realize what this means to those whom we represent. We believe in a square deal to all classes of people and ask that you use your earnest efforts to secure it for us without allowing us to be called upon to sacrifice our main chance on the altar of the consumers' welfare."

THE PUBLIC HALL

Discussed by Appropriations Committee and Commission

Different Sites for the Proposed Building Were Talked Over—Final Figures Showing Amounts Allotted to Different Municipal Departments

At a meeting of the appropriations committee and members of the public hall commission held last night the commission gave its reasons for selecting the Old Washington tavern site, and Alderman Gallagher, chairman of the committee on appropriations, suggested that the people be given a chance to vote on the question, providing that the present city government, as a whole, would not agree with the commission's selection of a site. On motion of Councilman Chapman it was voted that the commission be requested to ascertain the price for which the Old Washington tavern site can be purchased and report to the appropriations committee.

Chairman Gallagher called to order at 8:30 and read the report of the public hall commission. Recommending the Old Washington tavern site for a public hall. The assessed valuation of the property is $61,900 and it comprises about 21,000 square feet of land.

Major Charles S. Proctor read a letter sent to the city council April 6, 1903, in which it was stated that eight meetings had been held and that the Old Washington tavern site would best serve the people. "The commission has no hand in the adjudication of the amount to be paid. That will be wholly in the hands of the city solicitor," said Mr. Proctor.

"The commission," continued Mr. Proctor, "has acted under four mayors and no mayor, who has been chairman ex-officio of the commission, has been opposed to this site. At no time has more than one man been opposed to this site. The present commission unanimously favors this site."

Mr. Flanagan asked Mr. Proctor how many sites had been looked over, and Mr. Proctor said the lot at the junction of John and Paige streets, the Coburn lot, the lot where the York club stands, the so-called White property in Bridge street, and a lot in Tremont street had been considered, besides the Washington tavern site.

"The Coburn lot is too small," he said, "in our opinion. The property in No. 2 street, near the York club, is too noisy, and it has some strings tied to it, through a connection with Locks and Canals property. The lot in Tremont street, occupied by the Methodist and Baptist churches, costs more than the Washington tavern site. The White property was located in a noisy section and one where there is much congestion. The lot in Tremont street did not commend itself to us."

"A great many people want a hall, but don't care where it is placed," said Chairman Gallagher. "Being near the old lot for a time, I was in a position to hear much criticism. The fact remains that previous governments have not agreed with this commission."

"We don't know how the present government as a whole will feel upon this matter. But supposing this government should not favor the lot, isn't there some means whereby we can get an honest expression from the people to determine what site should be selected? A ballot of some kind should be arranged. Stations might be located in fire houses or other places in the city so that voters might be given a chance to express a preference."

"It ought to be our guiding motive to get the people the hall they want and to put it where the majority wants it."

Major Proctor said that all of the regular paraphernalia for balloting would have to be used.

Mr. Hurd said the only safe way would be to submit it to the voters at a regular election.

Major Proctor believed that an absolute honest expression of the matter could be received when the question of a site went onto an official ballot.

Mr. Flanagan asked Mr. Proctor how many car lines did not pass the proposed site. The answer was the Lovey square, Christian Hill, bloody street, Pelham, the annual avenue, Pawtucket, village, Broadway, Oaklands, Audover street, High street and Boston (via Tewksbury) lines.

Mr. Flanagan asked Mr. Proctor if the Green school site had been considered. Mr. Proctor said it had never been suggested until recently. It would take 20,000 square feet, at least, for a suitable building.

Mr. Russell said he personally would prefer a business house on a lot where Sumner's market is in Gorham street, than a public hall there. Thousands of people pass that way every day, while a public hall only attracts people who go for pleasure, generally in the night hours.

Mr. Flanagan wanted to know if the board of trade and the newspapers favored the creation of a commission to select a site and to prepare plans to erect a building. Mr. Russell said he believed the idea originated in the board of trade; he didn't know what the newspapers had to do with it.

Mr. Flanagan was opposed to turning the matter back to the people to vote on. "The commission is now in existence, and has been for four years. He favored allowing the commission to go ahead."

"The same thing that created the commission can obtain and wipe it off the map," said Mr. Proctor. "The commission is to be responsible. And unless something is done, the commission won't care if it is rescinded. We are men and honest men and we haven't been fairly treated. We don't ask any compensation, other than to be treated like men."

"You wait until the people are substantially agreed upon one site, you will wait forever," said Mr. Russell. Major Proctor spoke of the trend of business towards Tower's corner. He favored the city buying the Coburn lot and keeping it open as a breathing space.

"I don't believe," said Mr. Russell, "that you can establish a civic center and with any certainty feel that that center is going to remain."

"I believe that a business center can be changed, but that your civic center does not change," said Mr. Gallagher. Mr. Russell said he had no business and civic centers together. Adjourned.

Work on Estimates
After the meeting with the public hall commission the committee on appropriations met to consider department estimates. No changes were made in the estimates. The various orders to be prepared were gone over by Chairman Gallagher, and he read his report of the meetings held by the committee.

Mr. Chapman moved that the committee report be accepted and reported to the city government. Mr. Fulton moved to know if the figures in the auditor's department were to be changed. Mr. Chapman said the department employees were well paid. Any change would mean an entire changing of figures.

Mr. Fulton favored raising one employee in the auditor's department. Mr. Chapman said he would favor raising the purchase agent's and the city clerk's departments.

The motion to accept the report was then put and it was declared passed.

BOARD OF TRADE

Organized by Citizens of Westford

Says Anti-Combination Laws Injure the Small Dealers

The citizens of Westford at a recent meeting held in the town hall formed an organization to be known as the board of trade of Westford, and adopted by-laws to govern said association, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Edward Fisher; vice-president, P. PRAYER MEETINGS
To be Held In Local Saloons Tonight

Edwin A. Corbett, Jr., an evangelist from Providence, R. I., and Miss Margaret L. Conrad, a noted singer of gospel hymns, will hold prayer meetings in some of the local saloons this evening.

Mr. Corbett called at Mayor Meahan's office this forenoon to ask his approval and financial support. The mayor contributed without a murmur, and told Mr. Corbett that he had the mayor's consent to go where he pleased. Mr. Corbett had already obtained the consent of the police board and superintendent of police.

"Do you take up a collection at these saloon meetings?" asked Mayor Meahan. "No, we refuse to accept money at the meetings. We do this because we know the public is prone to criticize religious movements if money is collected, especially in the saloons. Our movement is non-sectarian and non-denominational. It is a special religious work that we are taking up and I feel that we are doing a lot of good."

"But how do you manage to exist?" "By appealing to such men as yourself, men whom we think would be interested in the uplift movement in all its branches."

"I am certainly in favor of anything along that line," said the mayor, as he dug down in his jeans for a strip of the long green.

COAL OPERATORS

Says Anti-Combination Laws Injure the Small Dealers

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Anti-combination laws, which prevent the coal operators of Illinois and Indiana from uniting to raise prices, were declared at a convention of the operators here yesterday to be the ruin of the industry and driving the small operator into bankruptcy.

Many coal mines in Illinois and Indiana are closed down and working half time, and coal is said to be selling below actual cost of production. The demand is light and the trade is demoralized, according to the operators who are meeting to devise ways and means of improving the situation.

Walter Bogle presided at the meeting, and a committee of 13 operators from Illinois and eight from Indiana were appointed to prepare an amendment to the anti-trust law so as to allow the operators to combine to maintain steady and uniform prices.

The present law against combinations operates to cause the very conditions it was intended to prevent, said Mr. Bogle.

"We do not wish to form a combination in restraint of trade," he continued, "but under existing conditions, small operators are being forced to the wall, the smaller properties are being merged and the big companies get all the business. Instead of the laws preventing the industry from falling into the hands of a few it actually is forcing that condition."

GREAT FINANCIER
Baron Rothschild, Head of Banking House, Dead

VIENNA, Feb. 11.—Baron Albert Rothschild, head of the Austrian branch of the Rothschild house, died today. He was born in 1844.

The death recalls the romance of the baron's youngest son, Oskar, who died suddenly in the Rothschild palace here in July, 1909, following the breaking of his marriage engagement with Miss Olga Menz, daughter of Rudolph Hess of Chicago. It was widely reported that Baron Oskar committed suicide by shooting, though the family asserted that death was due to apoplexy.

During the year preceding, the young man made a tour of America and met Miss Menz and they became engaged. His father objected to the match and Oskar returned to his home, dying two days after he reached Vienna. He was 21 years old.

DEATHS
SWAIN.—Died in Westford, Feb. 9, Mrs. Helen Swain, aged 15 years. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, Fred W. Swain, six children, four boys and two girls.

DUNN.—Died at his home, 6 Upland street, Draught, Feb. 9, Timothy Dunn. The deceased was a veteran of the Civil war and is survived by a bereaved wife.

SMITH.—Patrick Smith, a well known resident of Lowell and a devout member of St. Peter's parish, died today at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John J. Cole, 33 North street. Besides his daughter, he is survived by three sons, John of Nashua, James of Lawrence and Michael of Los Angeles, and four grandchildren. Deceased was well known by the older residents of the city.

SARGENT.—Emmons B. Sargent died in Somerville Feb. 9, 1911, aged 70 years, 3 months. He formerly resided in Lowell, but left the city in 1893.

During his service he was elevated to the position of corporal under Captain Philbrick, who was in command of the company.

Shortly after the war he and his wife took up their residence in the city, and he continued to work for Carter, Carter & Kilburn, who survives her husband, has been in failing health for some time past and an affliction to her sight has caused her much inconvenience about the house. STRUCK BY TRAIN

Lowell Man Was Injured at Nashua

John Short, an employee of the Omaha Packing and Provision Co. of this city, met with a painful accident last night by being struck by a train in Nashua, N. H.

It seems that Short whose home is at 77 Gorham street, this city, attended the funeral of a relative in Nashua yesterday afternoon and was in the depot awaiting the arrival of his train when the accident happened. He was removed to the hospital in an unconscious condition, but an hour later recovered his senses. The man's injuries are not severe and his recovery is looked for.

THE TRACK MEET
LOWELL HIGH TO MEET RINDGE MANUEL TRAINING ATHLETES

All roads will lead to the High School annex in Paige street tonight where the Lowell High and Rindge Manual Training school track teams will meet. The members of both teams are in the pink of condition, and if the dope of the rail birds can be taken for granted there will be some excitement tonight. Despite the fact that Boston colleges turned the tables on the Rindge athletes the boys of the manual training school are seeking the lost laurels and intend to make it warm for the Spinnaker City boys tonight. On the other hand Lowell wants to finish the season with a clean slate and will do its utmost to score a victory.

The officials for tonight's meet have been decided upon and will be as follows: Referee, Victor Jewett; Judges, Messrs. Dawson, Irish, Bennett, Slater, Dr. Fordyce Coburn, Inspectors, Messrs. Whitcomb, Mann, Fisher, Secord; clerks of course, Messrs. Hunt and Cahill; timers and measurers, Messrs. Brennan, Judson, Woodward; scorers, Sullivan and Caples; announcer, Howard Wing.

WORCESTER MAN
MADE ATTEMPT TO SHUT OFF HIS WIND

WORCESTER, Feb. 11.—"I want to commit suicide because they won't let me have my suffering," said a man in a cell in police headquarters yesterday after he had been locked up on a charge of stealing a dress of his sister to get money for the purchase of liquor.

His cry brought the station attendant to the cell door, and he found Powers with a cardigan jacket and his vest tied around his neck and he was lugging at the ends in an effort to shut off his wind.

He was in no danger because he could not tie the knot tightly enough to do himself any harm, but he insisted that the police surgeon give him something to quiet his nerves or he would make away with himself. The doctor mixed up a dose of salts to take his mind off the suicide and he was relieved of all clothing that would enable him to hang himself.

Powers was seen walking along Main street with a woman's outfit over his arm by Patrolman John H. Reardon, who took him to headquarters, where they arrived just as Powers' sister entered the station to report that a dress had been stolen.

SENT TO TOMBS
Woman Smuggler Is Given Sentence

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—As a warning to women who have no qualms about smuggling, Judge Martin, in the criminal branch of the U. S. district court yesterday, sentenced Roberta C. Hill to the Tombs from last night until 5 o'clock Monday morning and fined her $5000.

The fine was paid and Mrs. Hill was led away sobbing hysterically. She is the daughter of Alford Manges, a Brooklyn horseman, and the divorcee wife of Capt. James Hill of the British army.

Counsel for Mrs. Hill made a strong plea for the court's mercy, but Judge Martin said that he felt that a jail term was warranted.

The Massachusetts team captured two of the three points in the game with the Hamiltons tonight in the Manufacturers' league last night. The second string proved to be a bad one for the Massachusetts aggregation only one of the five rolling better than 90.

In the Minor league the Rocklands and Lawrence Five clashed with the result that the former team won all the points. O'Brien of the winning team was high man, having a triple of 292.

The Pneumatics and Lamson Rapids were the contesting teams in a game played in the Lamson C. S. S. league, the former team winning two of the three points.

The game between the Jewelers and Druggists in the Moody Bridge league resulted in a victory for the Jewelers who won two of the three points. The Ramblers had little difficulty in defeating the Cuckoos in the game played last night in the Minor league series. The scores:

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS BETRAYED THEIR CONSTITUENTS

There is a good deal of opposition among democrats on account of the passage of the ship subsidy bill in the senate by the casting vote of President Sherman of that body. The vote stood 37 to 37 when the president of the senate decided the contest by voting in favor of the measure.

The strange feature of the situation is that while democrats all over the country were criticizing the measure as a raid upon the public treasury, the bill might have been easily defeated if the democratic senators had done their duty. At the very time when the senate voted upon this bill there were nine democratic senators who did not vote at all, and among these were some of the most distinguished democratic shouters in the entire senate, including Senator Bailey of Texas, Gore and Owen of Oklahoma, Rayner of Maryland, Jeff Davis of Arkansas, Money of Mississippi, Watson of West Virginia, and Bacon of Georgia.

These senators deliberately evaded going on record on this measure. Young Senator Watson, who appeared in the senate for the first time as successor to Senator Elkins, voted on another measure a few hours before the division on the subsidy bill and then deliberately walked out of the chamber leaving another senator to state that he was called away on important business. They were all away "on important business." But what are the senators sent to Washington for, if not to protect their constituents against such public plunder as this ship subsidy bill contemplates?

This bill was fathered by Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, and it is a proposition under which the sum of $40,000,000 may be paid out of the national treasury in ten years as a free gift to private corporations for about thirty ships to be used on lines to South and Central America and some other ports. The alleged object is to rehabilitate the American merchant marine, which needs some method of restoration to life. The proposition is to pay $4,000,000 annually to private corporations on condition that these companies will build ships to be used in carrying United States mails. It can be easily foreseen that only the favored ones will get this money, and it will enable concerns now default to build ships at the government's expense ostensibly to carry the mails and engage in trade, but they may be eventually diverted to other uses if the owners see fit.

One of Senator Gallinger's propositions is, that these vessels when constructed will ply between this country and the ports of South America establishing commercial lines which will afterwards be taken up by private concerns. Senator Newland of Nevada proposed a substitute for this subsidy measure under which the government would build the ships at $1,000,000 each, then lease them to private concerns to carry the mails and establish commercial lines as proposed under the Gallinger bill. That would not enrich the private concerns that are howling for the subsidies and as a result Senator Newland's amendment was defeated. The Gallinger bill might also have been defeated but for the perfidy and open betrayal of their constituents by a number of democratic senators.

It is true that the merchant marine of the United States has disappeared from the seas, and it is equally true that some practical method should be adopted to revive it, but that method should not be one that will take $40,000,000 out of the public treasury to be handed over to private concerns for the purpose of building ships to be afterwards used in a profitable business for the ownership.

The Gallinger proposition is a species of public robbery; the Newland substitute was the only sensible plan put forward to meet the situation. It would have the ships built and owned by the government, then leased to private concerns and at the same time held as a reserve for the United States navy in case of necessity. The seamen employed would be under naval discipline and after the government had opened commercial lines then private companies could begin to participate in the business. Thus the government would have been saved the amount of money to be expended and would build up the merchant marine, while the ships employed would always be ready to respond in case of need by the naval authorities.

If United States senators were elected by the people they would not prove so recalcitrant to their duty as did the democrats mentioned. Furthermore if many of the representatives had not been defeated at the polls, they would not be so ready to support a measure of this kind that pays out many millions of money to be handed over as a free gift to shipping companies.

THE BOSTON ELEVATED AND THE TROLLEY EXPRESS

For some time past an agitation has been in progress for a trolley express from Boston to Lowell, to serve all the intervening cities and towns at the same time. A similar plan was to be put in operation between Boston and other outlying cities and towns, and altogether a great deal was expected from the opening up of this trolley express system. It was hoped that it would assist in the development of the farms lying along the interurban lines, that it would enable the farmers to get their produce quickly to the markets and at the same time facilitate the transportation of supplies from the cities and towns.

The Boston and Northern Street Railway company, it seems, has secured the necessary permits after considerable trouble from Lowell to Boston, but the Elevated road objects to allowing the company to enter the city of Boston. That appears now to be the only snag that holds back the trolley express. Thus a single company, doing business in Boston, would prevent an enterprise, intended to benefit a large portion of the state. If the trolley express should prove beneficial in this locality or on the line between Boston and Lowell, it would soon be adopted all over the state, and would undoubtedly be attended with good results in affording means of transporting merchandise that would greatly lessen the present express rates. For some years past the merchants of New England have been complaining of the steadily increasing express rates.

They have appealed in vain for a reduction, the express companies being so strong that they can afford to turn a deaf ear to such appeals. It is plain, therefore, that the Boston Elevated company stands against the interests of the entire state, and that the legislature should interfere to grant the Boston & Northern company the privilege of entering Boston in spite of all opposition. The people of the state want the trolley express, and the question comes as to whether their interests or those of the Elevated railway in Boston will prevail. The Boston Elevated is running things with a high hand so far as Boston is concerned, but it should not be allowed to block the progress of the rest of the state. That is what it is attempting to do at the present time in preventing the Boston & Northern from entering Boston with the trolley express. The merchants of New England are interested in this contest and should see to it that the dog in the manger policy of the Boston Elevated will be quickly overruled.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

The fourth annual meeting of the Eastern Massachusetts Section of the Classical Association of New England will be held in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts on Saturday. Addresses will be made by Prof. W. K. Denison of Tufts; Wm. F. Abbott of the Classical High School, Worcester; Eugene A. Hocker, of the Roxbury Latin School; Aristides E. Phourides of Cairo; Prof. George H. Chase of Harvard; and Prof. J. L. Manatt of Brown.

A recent addition to the curiosities of the Dartmouth college library is a collection of master cards of the hands of famous men, both living and dead. This collection, which is the gift of Kendall Banning, 1902, contains cards of the hands of Voltaire, Goethe, Rubinstein, Lincoln, William Morris Hunt, Walt Whitman, Mark Twain, Thomas A. Edison, Richard Watson Gilder and Andrew Carnegie.

Mrs. Bessie Sain, 50 years old, of Topeka, Kan., has registered at the state capital as a lobbyist for woman suffrage. She is too feeble to visit the state house in person, but will do the work by telephone and by correspondence with the legislators.

There is a proposal in the borough of Newton, Eng., the bishopric of George Eliot, to erect a memorial to the famous novelist. A granite obelisk marks her birthplace, but there is no other memorial of the woman in the town. The present plan is to erect a statue of the woman which she attended or else have a statue of Adam Bede in the town. The original of Adam Bede is supposed to have been the novelist's father.

Earl Baldwin Smith, 11, Brunswick, has been awarded by the faculty of Bowdoin college the Charles Carroll

Everett scholarship of $600 for graduate study in 1911-12. This scholarship is derived from the income of certain real estate, once owned by the family of the late Dean Everett of Harvard divinity school, a graduate of Bowdoin in 1856. Smith, 11, prepared for Bowdoin at Westboro, Mass. High school, and at Pratt institute. He has been art editor of his class annual, "popular man" on ivy day, an editor of the college monthly, a prominent football player, a member of the Good Government club, Deutscher Verein, student council, and the Psi Upsilon fraternity. He will specialize in the history of art.

George B. McClellan, ex-mayor of New York, is to be professor of either public affairs or political economy at Princeton university, unless the plans of his friends, who have been active in his behalf, go awry. It is announced that arrangements have been made for founding the chair in the university which McClellan will occupy. He is likely to take up his new duties next fall at the latest. The sum needed to endow the new professorship is set at $50,000, and some of the ex-mayor's friends several weeks ago undertook to raise this sum. It is said that nearly all of the $50,000 has been subscribed.

Five students, selected by the Turkish government by competitive examination, are now on the way to Columbia university. Three of these will have scholarships which were placed at the disposal of the Turkish government by Columbia, and the remaining two will have scholarships placed directly from their home government.

This will be the first time that Turkish students have come to this country under the patronage of the Ottoman government. The negotiations for the visit of the students were arranged by the Turkish minister, Mr. Ruzi Bey, of Constantinople, and the Turkish minister of foreign affairs. The plan was first broached last spring, before Oscar Siraus resigned his post as ambassador, but it was not completely worked out until Mr. Siraus took charge of the embassy. It is believed that the friendliness between the United States and the leaders of the Young Turk movement has been materially strengthened by the negotiations. The Turkish students possess a good knowledge of English, and are invited to the scholarships by the Turkish ministry of public instruction. They will be placed under the direction of one of the professors, who will look after them during their stay in New York. They will be lodged at the university and everything will be done to make them comfortable.

TALK ON BRAZIL

The boys and their parents are invited to a lecture on Brazil, to be delivered by Rev. J. M. Kyle at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association at 745, 746, 747, Saturday evening. The talk will be illustrated by many stereopticon views. Mr. Kyle spent many years in this country, having just returned a short time ago.

Any friends who may care to attend will be welcome.

ANTI-ALIEN BILLS

May be Called Out on Sympathetic Strike

CANTON, O., Feb. 11.—More than 200,000 miners in Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia may be called out on a sympathetic strike as a result of the failure of the miners and operators of sub-district six to reach an agreement on wage differences here yesterday.

BURSARS BANQUET

REGENT OF BRUNSWICK ISSUES A WARNING

BREMEN, Feb. 11.—Duke Johann Albrecht of Mecklenburg, regent of Brunswick, uttered a remarkable warning to Germans of all classes in speaking last night at the annual bursars' banquet, which was attended by leading commercial men, ship owners, manufacturers and army officers. "Under the German flag," said the duke, "we see a wild competition by everybody against everyone else. This is breaking up German interests while other nations are concentrating all their strength by working together. Many look anxiously at the German flag flying on the ship masts and ask themselves when it will give place to the Union Jack or the tri-color or even the yellow dragon."

"The call should go up here before it is too late. Everybody to work! I appeal to shipbuilders, ship owners, mine owners, industrial men and all others to draw together like one people for the benefit of the whole and thus secure a proper position among nations for German commerce and shipping."

THE WIDOW'S MITE

VALUES PLACED ON LIVES OF WORKMEN KILLED.

An ambulance backed up to No. 17 Bond street, Chicago. Abe Miller was in the ambulance. His wife now had to face the world unaided, for Abe, who was a worker in a steel mill, while handling hot metal had been burned and died from the injuries. A three line notice in a list of accidents in a newspaper was all the world at large ever heard of his death. The community settled for $500 and promised permanent employment to Abe's wife. She went to work and her inadequate earnings were supplemented by charitable relief, says the Survey Press Bureau.

The circumstances of Abe's misfortune are fairly typical of fifty other accidents of which information was obtained through charitable organizations in ten of the largest cities of the country. A torch and a bale of hay caused one of the most dramatic mine disasters in industrial history. Andrew Davin and 257 of his fellow workmen lost their lives. For weeks the press of the country pulsed with stories of thrilling rescue by a heroic gang of men who finally perished in an act of supreme sacrifice. Twenty-one men buried alive for eight days were saved. Ministers made the disaster the text for sermons that stirred profoundly the imagination and sympathy of the public. This publicity acted with compelling force upon the employing company, the generous public, city councils and the state legislature.

Andrew Davin's family received $1500 from the company that employed him, and nearly as much again from public contributions, miners' unions and the legislature. Fate decreed that Abe Miller should die all alone, from a violent accident and as a consequence his widow received less than one-seventh the sum she would have enjoyed had her husband chanced to be in the mine at Cherry. But her need as a widow would have been unchanged by the fact that her husband was one of 257 to be killed. Luck was simply against her.

Fortune is almost always against the widows of husbands who are killed one at a time in industrial accidents. Abe Miller's widow fared better than very many. The families of the thirty men referred to who suffered obscure deaths received in compensation $749 or $187 apiece. The fifty Cherry families received from the company $50,000—$158 apiece. In the case of Cherry, on account of the publicity and activity of the Red Cross, the press and business associations, fifty families received in contributions, from the state and from unions, $87,000, in addition to what the company gave, making a total of $177,000. The other fifty families received besides the $5,749 an indefinite amount in relief and pensions, and from charity societies, and a still more indeterminate sum from institutions, nurseries, hospitals, etc. In 115 cases of married men killed by industrial accidents in Erie county, New York, the families received nothing in thirty-eight cases and the compensation in nine was $100 or less. Thirty-four families got from $101 to $500, and fourteen from $501 to $2000. In only eight cases was over $2000

The compensation to the victim of fifty fatal accidents, which were contrasted with the fifty cases at Cherry, ranged from $300 to nothing. In two cases $7000 each was awarded, but they were appealed from court to court and the victims finally got nothing. The uncertainty and delay had a most demoralizing effect. These people set their expectations on sums of money that would make them independent, huge fortunes in their eyes, and after living in this anticipation, adopting a scale of living accordingly, so far as they could, they were finally disappointed and got nothing.

Sums of these excessive awards were an injustice to the employer, but when they were reversed and nothing was received, it certainly was an injustice to the employee. This engenders bad feeling between employer and employee.

The manufacturing and business concerns of this country have in the last five years paid to casualty companies in premiums $95,000,000. Less than $35,000,000 has gone in settlement of damages, and less than half of this $45,000,000 has reached injured persons. After lawyers' fees, court costs and other expenses were met, not more than 20 or 30 per cent of the whole sum actually reached the families of those killed and injured.

It is estimated that one accident out of eleven is prosecuted in the courts and that one out of ten thousand is successful," says the report of the commission on industrial accidents in Washington.

This enormous expense has, of course, been added to the cost of manufactured products. If this matter could be taken from the war basis on which it rests, it seems altogether likely that the money which employing concerns are afraid to expend, would go a long way to meet the needs of a just, fair and adequate compensation.

RACE QUESTION

Injected Into Discussion Over Election of U. S. Senators

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The injection yesterday by Senator Root and Senator Bacon of Georgia of the race question into the hitherto comparatively commonplace discussion in the senate of the resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote, lifted that controversy to an almost sensational plane.

In a long speech by Senator Root in opposition to the Borah resolution he said that the national government could not afford to barter away the privilege of supervising senatorial elections in the south if need should arise for such supervision.

Also in speaking of the observance of the 11th and 15th amendments to the constitution he said that from time to time "things happen" in the South which should not be permitted by the states and which should be corrected, if not by the states themselves then by the national government. Later he took occasion to emphasize this statement.

When first made the declaration caused a visible stir on the democratic side of the chamber, and feeling was intensified by the repetition of it at once became manifest that if anything was lacking to insure opposition by the southern senators to the resolution it had been supplied by Mr. Root.

Senator Borah, who had charge of the measure, said that the race question had been dragged into the case for the purpose of alienating the minority.

When Mr. Root finished his speech he left the chamber. Mr. Bacon immediately expressed a desire for specifications regarding the things which the New York senator had said "happen in the south," which ought to call for federal intervention, but the demand did not reach Mr. Root until after Senator Beveridge had made a formal reply to the New York senator's speech and the senate was prepared to adjourn. Just before 6 o'clock Mr. Bacon revived the southern question. Repeating the remarks of the New Yorker, Mr. Bacon addressed himself directly to Mr. Root and asked:

"What are the things to which the senator refers?"

Mr. Root's response was in no wise evasive or indirect. Recalling the substance of his previous remarks, he said that he had reference to the voluntary surrender by the government of the power of supervising the election of the suffrage privileges of the southern negroes. Facing Senator Bacon and speaking with great deliberation, Mr. Root enumerated peonage, lynching and disfranchisement, such as "the grandfather clause" in the constitutions of many of the southern states, as things calculated to deprive the black man of that equal protection with the white man which the constitution guarantees.

"The people of the United States are willing to fold their hands and wish the southern people God-speed in working out their delicate problem so long as they do so in kindness, but if there should be such oppression as to call for the exercise of the power of the United States to enforce the amendments that power will be exercised, and it ought to be," he said.

Mr. Bacon said that such questions as lynching and peonage were in no wise cognate to the subject under consideration. He accounted for lynchings on the ground of severe provocation, which he said deprived men of their reason and made demons of them. He found one cause for them in the sparsity of population and to show that this crime is confined to no one part of the country said there was a lynching in New York in which the victim was burned to death. As for the charge of peonage, he said there was no practice in the south worthy of that name.

Indicating doubt as to Mr. Root having had such offenses in mind, Mr. Bacon said he was sure the New York senator was really inveighing against supposed offenses against the franchise.

"Am I correct?" questioned Mr. Bacon.

"Perfectly," responded Mr. Root. Then he added: "If the constitution should be so amended as to provide for the election of senators by direct vote the national government must retain the power to make these elections free and unhampered. Without this privilege the government of the United States surrenders the power of its own preservation."

"Does the senator contend for the power of congress to annul laws now on the statute books, such as the 'grandfather clause'?" asked Mr. Bacon.

"Without the slightest doubt," said the New Yorker.

"Well," returned the Georgian, "the senator has certainly put us on notice."

"I meant to put you and also the country on notice," replied Mr. Root, speaking with force.

Replying at some length, Mr. Bacon said that to change the manner of electing senators without giving the states control was a grave risk. Speaking of the past experiences of the south, he said:

"If the southern people had not contended heroically against conditions which confronted them civilization would have been destroyed in the south and it would have been but a short time before it would have been destroyed in the entire nation."

After a few remarks by Senator Fletcher of Florida regarding the so-called peonage system of the south, the incident closed for the day with Senator Borah's declaration that everybody knew perfectly why the question of lynchings and peonage had been brought into the controversy.

EDITOR ELVERSON

PROPRIETOR OF THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER IS DEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—James Elverson, Sr., proprietor and editor of Philadelphia Inquirer died at his home here last night, aged 73 years. He had been ill several weeks.

Mr. Elverson purchased the controlling interest in the Inquirer in 1853. Among his earlier ventures in the publishing field were the Saturday Night, a story paper which he established in 1865, and Golden Days, a well known juvenile publication which he started in 1880.

Born in England he came to this country in 1847. He was a telegraph operator at the age of 16. At the outbreak of the Civil war he went to Washington as the manager of the American Telegraph company and personally handled much of the important business of the department. He was in close touch with the Lincoln administration and was on intimate terms with the president and members of the cabinet. He was delegate at large to the national republican conventions of 1860, 1864 and 1868.

Mr. Elverson is survived by a widow and two children.

DIED ON TRAIN

MOTHER OF JAMES BOY WAS STRICKEN SUDDENLY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Zerelda Samuel, 86 years old, mother of Frank and Jesse James, the former bandits, died yesterday afternoon on a St. Louis & San Francisco railway train 15 miles north of here. She was on the way to Kansas City from the home of her son, Frank, who lives on a farm near Fletcher, Okla.

Mrs. Zerelda Samuel was one of the prominent figures of western Missouri during the latter part of the Civil war. She was born in 1824, and in 1841 married the Rev. Robert James, a Baptist minister. A short time later they moved to Clay county, Missouri.

The Rev. Mr. James went to California during the gold rush and died there. In 1866 his widow married Dr. Reuben Samuel.

During the war what was known as the "home guard" visited the home, and their treatment of Dr. Samuel caused him to become insane. A few years later private detectives, endeavoring to capture or kill Jesse James, threw a bomb into the house of Mrs. Samuel, causing the loss of one of her arms.

Mrs. Samuel took advantage of the celebrity of the old homestead and charged visitors 25 cents each to inspect the place. From this she received a comfortable income.

Three Other Children So Badly Frozen That it Was Necessary to Amputate Their Hands—Little Ones Were Left at Home Alone and the House Caught Fire

HOULTON, Me., Feb. 11.—Two children are dead and three were so badly frozen that it was necessary to amputate all their hands, as a result of a fire at East Littleton which turned the five little ones out into the snow while their parents were absent from home on business. The three survivors are in a serious condition but it was hoped their lives have been saved by the amputations.

They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lyons. The oldest is 7 years old, two were twins aged 4 years and the other two were twins, 2 years old.

Mr. Lyons was working in the woods and Mrs. Lyons was obliged to go to a neighbor's house for some supplies, leaving the children alone in the house. In the interval the house caught fire yet the older child succeeded in getting the younger children out of the burning house. The little ones sat in the snow, cuddled up, trying to keep warm until help arrived. The older twins crawled through the snow to a neighbor's house while the eldest child went to give the alarm, but not finding any one at home, they went into a shed and crawling into a pung tried to get under cover. When neighbors finally arrived on the scene the children were badly frozen. The house was totally destroyed.

THE UNIONISTS

UNABLE TO AGREE ON A LINE OF ACTION

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Apparently the unionist leaders in parliament have been unable to agree on lines of action in opposition to the government's policy. On the eve of the meeting of parliament, it was hinted that Lord Lansdowne, the leader of the opposition in the house of lords, was ready to introduce a bill for the reform of the upper house, but yesterday the Times said that the unionist leaders had decided it would be undesirable to introduce such a bill. Both these statements lack confirmation in responsible unionist quarters.

Lord Curzon of Kedleston in a speech here last night deprecated the presentation of a strife provoking veto bill at a moment when preparations for the coronation were being made, and urged the importance of both parties seeking to arrive at a permanent settlement of the problem—not a solution of it that the opposite party would endeavor to repeal. He openly referred to the imminence of the reform of the house of lords and suggested lines on which such action should be carried out.

PANAMA CANAL

The Fortification of It Discussed

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—To fortify or not to fortify was the bone of an after-dinner discussion of the Panama canal at the Economic club's banquet at the Hotel Astor last night. "Fortify," said the veteran fighter, Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired, "don't," cautioned an eminent authority on law, Prof. Henry Wade Rogers, dean of the Yale law school.

The disagreement between the speakers was a friendly one and was shared by others who addressed the meeting—Dr. Louis Livingston Seaman, Henry Reuterbach, the marine artist and naval authority; Congressman J. Warren Kelfer of Ohio; Henry Claws and George Henry Putnam, Count Apponyi, the Hungarian statesman who has come to America to discuss peace problems, dropped in for a moment. He would not commit himself as to the canal, but said his visit to America was not made with a feeling that it was necessary to urge a movement for universal peace, for America was already looked up to by the nations of Europe as the leader in the movement.

"Every military man must know," said Gen. Miles, "that in the case of war, the Isthmian canal would be, if possible, the first place to be seized by a foreign foe and any student of history must know that treaties are disregarded in almost every war. Even now in times of peace, our people advocated disregarding the treaty we have made with one foreign government and making a treaty with all nations to neutralize the canal which one and all could violate when it was to their interest to do so. Already we see indications in some quarters of a disposition to form a compact to prevent our protecting or holding the canal."

Mr. Reuterbach said: "We ought to close up the useless navy yards that are being used for the convenience of the constituents of the congressmen of the state where they are maintained, and construct an adequate base of supplies for the Panama canal. The next war will be in the Caribbean sea and we are inviting a disaster by not fortifying the canal. It cost $600,000 to build and $100 worth of nitroglycerine, properly placed in time of war, would disable the canal for any practical purposes."

for the Washington's Birthday Dinner

favors for Luncheons, Dinners And Cotillions

FOR the luncheons, dinners and cotillions planned for Feb. 22, which comes this year in mid-week, hosts of appropriate favors are ready, and naturally red, white and blue are the colors used.

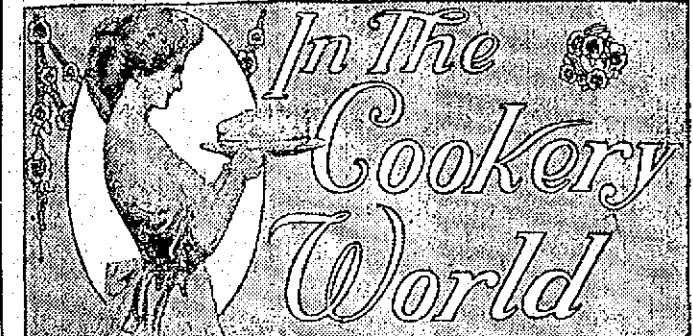

The cherry, as every one knows, is the symbol of the Father of His Country, and the feast celebrating his birthday, if it be dinner or luncheon, should begin with grapefruit generously dressed with maraschino cherries or with that particular liquid appetizer which boasts the cherry as its characteristic garnishment. The birthday party occurring on Washington's day will naturally have a cake elaborately trimmed with preserved cherries or the richly red artificial cherries which may be obtained together with glossy green leaves.

Some new and attractive Washington birthday favors are pictured. The three iceboxes and baskets are especially dainty. One of these is a pretty basket made of braided crepe paper trimmed with artificial cherries and leaves and a bow of red, white and blue ribbon on the tall handle. Another is a cherry tree, section, also made of crepe paper, and the third case is a fancy box which might easily be imitated at home. Three triangular pieces of cardboard are covered with crepe paper, one triangle white, the others red and blue. The three are pasted to Patrician candlesticks are in the form of cherry tree stumps and Uncle Sam hats, openings being provided at the top for the tall candles. Miss Columbia on a liberty pillar draped with red, white and blue crepe paper makes a pretty place favor. Columbia of course being represented by a china doll's head glued to the top of the tall bonnet box.

Cotillion favors for the patriotic day, or, rather, evening, are to be seen in another cut. These include small hatchets tied with ribbons, small fans with shield tops having oval pictures of the Father of His Country and pretty flag fans which may be opened and closed.

The Sunday Night Spread

IN many homes the Sunday night supper is the time when the young daughter of the house entertains a few of her girl friends, or perhaps if mother is lenient a couple of the boys may be invited to the spread. Here are a few recipes that are not too difficult for the novice to attempt when she plays hostess.

Dreams.—The very name appeals at once to the young people. Take in proportion three-quarters of a cupful of shaved rich yellow cheese, one tablespoonful of cream, a saltspoonful of mustard, a few grains of cayenne and rounds of bread lightly toasted on one side. Mash the cheese smooth and soften with cream, adding more if required to make it creamy enough to spread on the rounds of bread. Add seasoning and place two rounds together and place in the blazer of your chafing dish with just enough butter to saute them nicely without burning. Those may be prepared beforehand and neatly piled on a dish ready for sauteing.

Turkey Minced With Green Peas.—If you have had turkey or chicken for dinner a dainty hot supper dish can be prepared as follows: Take two cupfuls of the meat, chopped rather fine. Make a rich cream sauce with two cupfuls of milk and three tablespoonfuls of flour and three tablespoonfuls of butter.

Season the meat to taste with salt and pepper. Add a tablespoonful of minced parsley and the turkey. Let simmer for ten minutes. Then serve on rounds of toast. The toast may be omitted, and thin slices of buttered bread or olive and lettuce sandwiches may be served.

Shrimp Woggle.—Melt two level teaspoonfuls of butter in a chafing dish or saucepan. Stir in the same amount of flour and when smooth add one and a half cupfuls of rich milk. Stir until it cooks to a creamy state. Then add a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, two more tablespoonfuls of butter, a can of shrimps washed and drained and tossed a few minutes in a little butter, a few drops of onion juice, a can of tender green peas and salt and pepper to taste. Last of all, add a dash of paprika.

Welsh Rabbit.—Most young people would consider the list incomplete without the addition of a rabbit. To a pound of American cheese allow a cupful of cream or rich milk with as much cream as you can spare, two eggs, two level tablespoonfuls of butter and salt and paprika to taste. Shave or crumble the cheese and put all together in the chafing dish with the hot water pan underneath. Then light the lamp and as soon as the water begins to heat begin to stir the mixture. Stir and cook to a thick smooth cream, turn out the flame at once and serve.

Costumes For fancy Dress Party

THERE is no apparent reason for it, but it so happens that every season about this time there is a revival of fancy dress parties. Possibly in the fall and early winter hostesses are too occupied in introducing the buds of the season and in launching their social campaigns to give heed to anything so distinctly frivolous as a fancy dress party, but every woman has in her makeup the childish love of "dressing up," and the fancy party gives her a fine chance to let her fancy soar.

The frocks pictured are most attractive and at the same time easy to make. For the presentation of springtime all that is necessary are a pretty girl—not such a difficult item—yards of white cotton voile or fine cheesecloth for the

When the Lamp Is Lit

MUSINGS OF ELINOR HITE

WHY FRIENDS DISAPPOINT US.

"I am so disappointed in such and such a person," is a complaint we are constantly hearing.

"Why are you?" I sometimes ask in response to the plaintive remark of my friend.

"Oh, because I thought she was this or that and she proves to be neither!" comes the aggrieved reply.

Then the disappointment is your fault, not hers. She couldn't help your expecting these things from her. She probably didn't even realize that you did so. The trouble is you have endowed her with qualities which she does not possess, and now you are disappointed that she has turned out differently. It was merely the fault of your poor judgment.

Don't you agree with me, now that you have come to think seriously about it?

Just because we are fascinated by a person we are apt to jump to the conclusion that she possesses all the virtues we should like her to have. We love to think: "She is perfect. I can give her my whole affection."

After awhile it happens that you find she has faults very similar to your own, and down she comes from the pedestal. The illusion is over. Another idol shattered. But it isn't the idol's fault. It is rare indeed to find a person in whom all the virtues and graces are combined, and I doubt if we would feel very comfortable in the society of such a paragon. For instance, the snub nose, faithful little creature who will go through fire and water for some one she is fond of will probably not have the attractions of the girl blessed with perfect features who never considers anybody but herself. So you must make up your mind to Grecian perfection and selfishness or irregular features and the reverse. You won't find the virtues that go with one kind of nose possessed by persons who have an entirely different sort.

The gay, amusing friend who invariably meets you with a bright smile and merry jest does not always possess the same depth of feeling as her more serious sister, and the agreeable man who charms with his small talk, though a decided addition to an evening party, may not be as reliable as the man whose conversation is apt to be somewhat heavy and who behaves awkwardly when he is making a call.

No one is all black or entirely white. The prevailing tint is gray. I may prefer one kind of grayness in my friend, you another. The best thing is to love our friends while recognizing the faults which, being human, they are bound to have, for that love is the only kind that endures and outlives everything.

fashion Jottings

Marquisette, cotton voile and loose meshed materials are going to be smart for spring and summer dresses.

Among the new cloth for gownmaking is a chenille fabric which resembles woolen crepe of a soft texture. Large patches of flat embroidery will trim these frocks.

More suitable and altogether more tailored looking are the new turnover collars of white bengaline silk to be seen on the spring suits.

Embroidery in porcelain heads is to be used on lingerie gowns both for grownups and for children.

Gold and silver lace when used for yokes in the new frocks will be veiled with chiffon or mousseline de soie.

Here are the color combinations of the spring in millinery and frocks. Blue and lavender, yellow combined with green and a touch of cerise is suggested on both gowns and hats.

Household Hints

SOMETIMES the gas will burn unevenly—very low at one side and with a long, thin stream at the other. If the burner is examined when the gas is turned off particles of dust or other foreign matter will be found in it. Run a bit of cardboard through the tip and the gas will burn more evenly.

Eggshells powdered fine make an excellent substitute for washing powder when laundering lace and fine neckwear. The eggshells must be absolutely clean and thoroughly dried, without the least suspicion of scorching, and should be pounded or rolled into fine powder in a mortar or with a rolling pin. Loosely fill a small lawn or cheesecloth bag with the fine powder, and when washing laces, fine neckwear or baby linen lay the little bag in all the separate washing, boiling and rinsing waters. Things washed in this way come out beautifully clean and white.

When incandescent gas mantles break don't throw them away as useless. Break them up into powder and use it for cleaning jewelry. It gives a beautiful polish and does not scratch the gold.

After washing fine black stockings rise them in water in which a little bluing has been added. This helps to preserve the color.

A florist says that the leaves of palms should be washed in milk and water, which will preserve them and prevent brown spots.

To renovate a fur rug rub in a liberal quantity of cornmeal, let it remain for several hours and then shake and brush out with a good stiff brush.

The Barnard School of Millinery

PROFESSOR of millinery! Bath—a unique chair, is it not, in the academic world? But the "progressive" leaven, always at work in Barnard college, New York city, has recently established this aesthetic professorship.

said: "There is no reason on earth why a girl who is working hard for her degree should be indifferent to her personal appearance, and surely nothing adds so much to that appearance as a smart, becoming hat. And," she continued, "we turn out just such creations

the recent work of an advanced pupil. When I had pronounced the confection a "dear" and lavished upon it all the chapeau adjectives in my vocabulary she interrupted my flow of "soul" by pointing out that I had missed the technically good part of the confection—the perfectly faced brim with its tiny cord edging, which in its way was a masterpiece. And not the least interesting of the many wonderful things done in the millinery class is the making of frames from a willow fabric that is dampened and pulled and clipped into condition over the wire foundations. Indeed, the material is molded and shaped much as a sculptor models his clay.

To prove that the millinery course of instruction is a popular one at this college one has only to look into the pleasantly situated workroom of the class and observe the students at their tasks. There is an air of suppressed enthusiasm, an atmospheric feeling of everybody trying to do her best.

to our judgment, it is perfect as far as we can make it and the most critical member of the class has pronounced a satisfactory verdict on the work." Each week there is a class criticism of the finished hats which is rather dreaded by the pupil whose handiwork is the target for the friendly aims of her sister workers.

Taking a special course under the expert guidance of Mrs. Tobey are college girls, society matrons, staid housewives and pupils from fashionable Fifth avenue finishing schools. The work starts in with the making of a real hat. Designs are first made in paper and then carried out in fabrics. The first hat made is a simple street model, and next comes the dressy confection.

No interview nowadays is complete unless the victim has been asked his or her viewpoint of the suffrage question, so before leaving the classroom I endeavored to learn Mrs. Tobey's mental status on the "votes for women" subject. The reply was, "I would advise women to study millinery and let the ballot go."

DAAPHNE DEAN.

The Cherry Bridge Party

Why not have a cherry bridge party on the 22d of February? To make it a regular George Washington party the historic tree should be a prominent feature of the evening's entertainment. Bring it about in this way: Sew some old white sheets together and on them paint in stencil dye a huge cherry tree. On the appointed night fasten the sheet from the picture molding so as to obtain off one end of the room. Mammoth cherries made of red tissue paper are to be pasted back of six inch circles cut out of the sheets. There is to be a cherry for each maiden's face.

Upon the arrival of the guests the girls are to disappear behind the curtain, and each one is to place her face opposite a tissue paper covered opening. The men of the party will then be given little hatchets and told to choose a cherry. They will each break through the paper and find a smiling face. As the cherries are broken the girls come from behind the curtain, each joins the man who has chosen her, and he presents her with a bunch of artificial cherries tied with red ribbon. This is a novel and amusing way of assigning partners for the bridge game.

GIVE AND TAKE.

"John always lets me have my own way, and we get along splendidly," a young bride wrote home to her people. But any one could, of course, get along "splendidly" under these conditions. What we have to learn to do is to get along peaceably even when we don't have things our own way. And to do this we must be prepared to give and take. Where two or three people live together small quarrels and bickerings are bound to arise, but at least we can do our best to avoid them as much as possible.

It always takes two to make a quarrel, and if we make up our minds that we won't be one of the guilty parties there will be less chance of a dispute arising.

SPRINGTIME—DOLLY VARDEN.

drapery and trailing vines and artificial flowers for the trimming scheme. Dolly Varden is an old fashioned lady very easy to impersonate. All one wants for this fascinating costume are a wide ruffled skirt of old world material, or a quaint design in chintz or cretonne will do; a reticule of yd olden days and a bodice with fichu arrangement, long earrings, a chignon of curls and if possible a hoopskirt. Lacking this obsolete piece of wearing apparel, one may find a good substitute in a stiff starched skirt of heavy muslin run with reeds. The pretty hat is a matter of individual taste and becomingness.

NEWEST LETTER PAPER.

Some of the prettiest note paper has a very narrow border of blue, pink, gray, lavender or red and one initial at the top set in a ring of color the exact shade of the border. Correspondence cards also are thus bordered and are very pretty.

News About The New Veils

No more freakish decorations on veils—such is the verdict of the spring fashions on "beautifiers." A successful ecclitist said recently that he had built his home on veils, and the hideous and optic destroying varieties we have been wearing lately would build for him a good big house in fees from their silly wearers. But never again! The meshes to be worn in the spring are the cobweb effects, so fine that the hair is kept in place, the general neatness of the appearance improved, yet the features are plainly visible through the veils.

Russian nets will be popular—those with simply a woven dot of the silk thread. The intensity of the color at the regular intervals gives the effect of chenille dots.
